

Limitations Are Set on State Campground Use For 1972

If you're hoping to enjoy overnight camping in Missouri's State Parks during the coming year, plan on picking out a camping site early.

According to Joseph Jaeger, Jr., director of Missouri State Parks, only a limited number of camping units will be permitted in each state park per night, specifically the number of spaces each campground was designed to hold.

Jaeger said the past practice of allowing "doubling up" among campers would be discontinued this coming year to insure that future campgrounds retain their present environment.

Environmental studies made in the 30 state parks which permit camping helped determine the maximum number of camping units each area can adequately handle, Jaeger said. No longer will overcrowding be permitted nor will overflow areas be designated, he stressed.

The nearest state overnight campgrounds is at Knob Noster State Park, where 122 units per night will be the limit allowed this year.

Jaeger said the limit is determined, in most cases, by the number of spaces for which the park was originally designed. He explained that a unit usually consists of a party of four in one vehicle such as a camper or station wagon.

"We really don't have any problems at Knob Noster as far as crowding is concerned," Jaeger said, "except in the late spring and early fall. Even then it's not a critical situation."

State Park Board attendance figures revealed that not quite 20,000 campers spent the night in Knob Noster State Park in 1970. Figures for 1971 are not yet available.

Jaeger estimated that the new camper limits would probably create a "no vacancy" situation not more than 50 or 60 times in the state throughout the summer.

"Park personnel will enforce the no crowding rules," Jaeger explained, "with the assistance of forest rangers."

"This no crowding policy was adopted years ago in the Great Lakes area," Jaeger said. "The problem is that most campgrounds aren't supplied with an adequate sewer system to handle an overflow of overnight visitors."

Two other area state parks are Arrow Rock, which will have a limit of 17 units per night, and Lake of the Ozarks, earmarked for a 221 unit nightly limit.

"We realize these new limits will create problems at the more popular state parks, such as Lake of the Ozarks, but these measures must be taken to insure the future beauty of state campgrounds," Jaeger said.

Jaeger said the problem shouldn't be as great as might have been expected years ago, due to the increase in recent years in private campgrounds.

"State Park personnel will refer campers to private campgrounds nearby," Jaeger said, "which should ease the camper burden. Already private industry is building campgrounds close to state park areas, recognizing the limitation of the campground's capacity for absorbing the disruptive forces of man."

Jaeger also revealed that portions of campgrounds in four state parks greatly damaged by overcrowding, will be closed for renovation beginning Jan. 1.

Soil compaction, erosion, loss of top soil and ground cover, as well as loss of trees at Meramec State Park near Sullivan, Roaring River State Park near Cassville, Bennett Springs State Park near Lebanon and Montauk State Park near Salem have forced their closing.

Renovation of these areas will include soil aeration, fertilization and seeding. Native trees will be planted and erosion will be checked, Jaeger said. Camping will still be available in other areas of these four parks.

Heavy Air Strikes Continue in North

SAIGON (AP) — The heaviest U.S. air attacks on North Vietnam in more than three years continued for the fourth day today with no letup in sight. North Vietnam claimed four planes were shot down.

A broadcast dispatch from Hanoi of the official Vietnam News Agency said the F4 Phantom jets were shot down in Quang Vinh and Nghe An provinces while attacking "populous areas." Hanoi claims seven American aircraft were downed in previous raids since Sunday.

U.S. diplomatic sources reported that the armada of 350 planes and helicopters flew more than 500 attack strikes and hundreds more support missions in the first 3½ days of the round-the-clock bombing that began Sunday.

To keep the attack force at full strength, a scheduled port leave for the carrier Constellation was delayed and it continued to launch its planes from the Tonkin Gulf, along with the carrier Coral Sea.

The Constellation and the Coral Sea are supplying about 150 fighter-bombers to the force attacking North Vietnam. The rest of the aircraft come from bases in South Vietnam and Thailand.

Radio Hanoi claimed that a seventh U.S. plane was shot down Tuesday, in Quang Binh Province just north of the demilitarized zone. It said nothing about the crew. Radio Hanoi reported earlier that five planes were shot down on Sunday and a sixth on Monday. It said a number of the pilots were killed or captured.

The U.S. Command refused to comment on the report of the number of strikes flown, Hanoi's claims of seven planes downed or its report that the raiders had killed or wounded many civilians. The command said that for security reasons it would disclose no details of the operation until it was completed.

Hanoi claimed that in Thanh Hoa Province on Sunday the U.S. planes killed 24 civilians and wounded 47. A broadcast said most of the casualties were caused by steel-pellet antipersonnel bombs dropped on workers in the fields; and that targets for the bombs included the Thanh Hoa hospital.

Despite the magnitude of the campaign, the U.S. Defense Department denied that it had turned the clock back to 1968, before President Lyndon B. Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam.

"We have not resumed the bombing campaign of the North," Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said in Washington. "Our operations are limited duration strikes. They are limited as to geography and targets."

When newsmen pointed out that Johnson's officials also claimed bombing attacks were limited as to targets, Friedheim replied, "They were not nearly as restricted as now."

Both Friedheim and U.S. Command spokesmen in Saigon repeated earlier official claims that the strikes are aimed at protecting the diminishing American forces in Vietnam. But it appeared that their chief purpose was to aid Laotian, Cambodian and South Vietnamese forces fighting the North Vietnamese on several fronts.

In addition to the antiaircraft batteries menacing U.S. planes along the Laotian border, the targets include vast stores of war materials awaiting shipment through the Barthelmy and Mu Gia passes to Communist troops in northern and southern Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The situation is critical again in Laos, where the North Vietnamese have recaptured the Plain of Jars in the northern part of the country and control much of the southern panhandle.

There is a massive buildup of troops in the triborder region where Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam join, and the South Vietnamese government expects a major offensive across the middle of the country.

South Vietnamese forces on a new sweep in the central highlands clashed with an estimated 100 North Vietnamese troops at the Cambodian border Tuesday. A communique said 28 of the enemy were killed with the help of U.S. air strikes and 17 weapons were captured. No South Vietnamese casualties were reported.

The U.S. Command disclosed that an Army OH6 observation helicopter was shot down on the Cambodian side of the border while supporting the South Vietnamese operation. Two Americans were reported wounded.

It was the 8,063rd U.S. aircraft reported lost in the Indochina war.

In Cambodia, heavy fighting was reported between Cambodian troops and Communist forces 46 miles north of Phnom Penh and 30 miles southeast of the capital.

The Cambodian command said the North Vietnamese attacked a government strongpoint at the village of Peam Chhork, 46 miles north of Phnom Penh on the Tonle Sap River. Spokesmen said the enemy was driven back with the help of allied air strikes.

Southeast of Phnom Penh, Communist forces were reported to have seized three villages, and the command said reinforcements were sent there.

At Lexington

Discuss MCB Efforts With State Officials

Several officials of the various Pettis County Community Betterment groups met with State Sen. Ike Skelton and State Rep. Joe F. Rains Tuesday in Lexington at Skelton's office.

The delegation included Bernard Dove, Green Ridge; Mrs. Frankie Phillips, Hughesville; Bill Hall, director of Industrial Development, Sedalia; and Mrs. W. C. Jones, LaMonte.

Hall said the purpose of the trip was to inform the legislators of the importance of the MCB program to towns in Pettis County, particularly rural communities.

Among the recommendations the delegation made to Skelton and Rains, was a request for a minimum of three more field workers for the state-wide program. No suggestion as to salary for the added personnel was made, Hall said.

Veterans Arrested At Lincoln Memorial

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 80 persons were arrested at a human barricade put up by Vietnam war veterans staging an antiwar protest at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington.

The arrests Tuesday followed by only a few hours a decision by 15 members of the same group, the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, to end their 40-hour occupation of the Statue of Liberty.

At the Lincoln Memorial, the U.S. park police arrested 86 demonstrators who refused to move from the entrance. The protesters placed their hands on their heads in prisoner of war fashion and waited for police to lead them to waiting buses. They were charged with blocking the entrance to a building, a misdemeanor.

The last person arrested was Gerald Evan, a University of Massachusetts student and an Air Force veteran. Evan had climbed atop a huge urn in front of the memorial and held aloft a flag emblazoned "Vietnam Veterans Against the War."

Thirty minutes after the last of his comrades was arrested, he shouted to police:

"You told me I was under arrest and I surrender. I'm your prisoner and under your custody. All you have to do is come and get me."

In the end, he climbed down and gave up.

Earlier, park police chased one protester from the urn across the memorial steps and knocked him down. Two others were arrested when they moved close to him.

Some 150 protesters had marched peacefully from the base of the Capitol to the front of the White House and then to the memorial.

The group had burned copies of the North Vietnamese seven-point peace plan at the base of the Capitol. Then, at the memorial, the group placed an empty coffin in front of the seated likeness of the 16th president. The protesters stood silently while taps was played, then staged a short sit-down before locking arms and attempting to barricade the entrance.

Demonstrators in New York left the Statue of Liberty in good shape, according to James Bateman, the statue's superintendent. Floors were cleared and refuse placed in garbage cans.

Ashbrook Challenge To Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusing President Nixon of largely abandoning his 1968 campaign promises, Rep. John M. Ashbrook announced his challenge to Nixon for the presidency today to give conservatives what he called an opportunity to remind Nixon of those promises.

The Ohio Republican said his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination would begin with the New Hampshire and Florida primaries.

Ashbrook accused Nixon of endangering U.S. national security, deepening the "illusion of detente" with Red China and the Soviet Union in defiance of pledges three years ago and "the largest, most outrageous string of deficits in American peacetime history."

Ashbrook also assailed Nixon's family assistance plan, saying it would more than double the U.S. welfare rolls with a guaranteed annual income.

If Americans wanted the kind of program Nixon has produced, Ashbrook contended, they "would have stuck to the party with the real expertise in these areas, the Democratic party."

Nixon, Brandt End Conference

Nixon and Brandt ... partnership pledge

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (AP) President Nixon ended his twoday summit conference with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt today with the announcement that Ambassador David Kennedy had been appointed the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Nixon said the appointment of Kennedy, who served as ambassador at large for the administration, underscored the American commitment to the Atlantic alliance.

Kennedy previously served as Nixon's first Secretary of the Treasury and the President said today it was the ambassador's knowledge and experience that led to his appointment.

Kennedy succeeds Robert Ellsworth as NATO envoy.

The Kennedy announcement was the only development of any immediate importance coming out of the two-day conference between Brandt and Nixon at the Florida White House. But it underlined the importance of the NATO alliance to both Brandt and Nixon, who spent much of their discussion time on treaty matters.

In brief remarks at the conclusion of today's morning session, Nixon said he and Brandt had put particular emphasis on European problems.

The President restated his previously expressed determination to maintain the U.S. commitment to NATO, including a continued large presence of American troops in Europe.

Brandt in turn expressed his gratitude to Nixon "for giving us this chance to meet and discuss problems in all frankness."

The chancellor said his nation considers good relations with the United States extremely important. All future efforts will be made to continue the close cooperation between Washington and Bonn, he said.

Just before leaving, Brandt invited Nixon to attend the 1972 Summer Olympics at Munich and the President told German reporters later, "I'll keep the Munich invitation on the list."

Nixon then said if he does not go to Munich he would be "watching some of it on television."

Planning Holiday Closings

The surge of holiday closings which preceded Christmas last Friday will not be as widespread on the eve of New Year.

Most city, state and federal offices will be closed Friday, as will the Sedalia Housing Authority.

County offices will be open as usual on Friday and Monday, according to E. L. Birdsong, Eastern District judge of the Pettis County Court.

Another exception will be the State Motor Vehicle Registration office, which will remain open on Friday and Monday.

City parking meters will not be monitored Friday, nor will the normal refuse pick up be made.

Normal mail service will be in operation Friday with the holiday schedule in effect for Saturday. Post office officials say, however, that the only collections made on New Year's day will be at the boxes at the post office and in the lobby.

Normal Sunday collections will be made, a post office spokesman said.

Roy M. Fisher

Journalism Dean Will Speak Here

Roy M. Fisher, dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri-Columbia, will be the main speaker at the Sedalia Jaycees' Distinguished Service Awards banquet Jan. 27.

Fisher assumed the MU position last April, succeeding Earl English. He left the editorship of the Chicago Daily News to accept the post at the School of Journalism, the oldest in the nation.

Starting out with the Daily News in 1945 as a police reporter, Fisher rose through the ranks of political writer, features editor and city editor before being named editor of the paper in 1965.

During his years on the Daily News, Fisher won the Sigma Delta Chi public service award, the National Headline award and the Chicago Newspaper Guild's Page One award. As editor, he directed the Daily News to two Pulitzer Prizes and three Sigma Delta Chi awards.

Fisher was selected dean of the MU School of Journalism after an extensive search by the board of curators to find the most qualified person for the position.

The DSA banquet annually recognizes achievement in four areas: Outstanding Young Man, Outstanding Young Farmer, Outstanding Young Woman and Outstanding Young Educator. It will be held in the Smith-Cotton cafeteria.

Antipoverty Bill Extension Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., says he expects legislation extending the federal anti-poverty program through June, 1973 will be ready for review by Congress in February.

In a recent newsletter, the senator said the anti-poverty program is now funded through June, 1972.

Symington noted he had received some 6,000 letters, many of them critical, on President Nixon's recent veto of the Economic Opportunity Act.

To Begin Center For Development

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A state center to help local communities plan and implement community development projects will be established in Topeka.

Gov. Robert Docking and officials of Midwest Research Institute announced the creation of the Kansas Center for Regional Progress, designed to improve economic growth and social progress. Iowa and Nebraska already have such centers.

The Kansas center is expected to cost $100,000 initially, and will be funded by a $60,000 contribution from the Battelle Memorial Institute and $40,000 in federal matching funds.

The center will have a small professional staff to help local groups who request assistance.

Midwest Research Institute, a non-profit consulting and research organization, announced its "Center for Regional Progress" program last February.

Charles Kimball, president of the Institute, and Charles Long of the Institute met with Docking Monday to discuss the center.

The governor said, "The center will provide Kansas cities with one central agency whose only function is to assist cities in determining the needs of their communities, plan community projects and implement the projects."

"In the past five years, we have made every attempt to assist local communities with projects designed to improve each community in Kansas. This new Center for Regional Progress is another step this administration has taken to upgrade the quality of life in our state."

Sees Nixon Try Against Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., says the Nixon administration has launched a calculated attack on his plan to raise government price supports on grain to help financially pressed farmers.

The attack is being led by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz who waited until Congress was out of session before making the move, Melcher says.

"It seems to be a calculated attack starting in the midst of the Christmas holidays to defeat my bill," Melcher said Monday.

He telephoned newsmen from Forsythe, Mont., after Butz revealed plans to resist congressional pressure for higher price supports. A bill introduced by Melcher and tied to another measure which would set up government-owned grain reserves has passed the House and is awaiting Senate committee action.

Butz, in a weekend interview, said the Melcher plan would "just wreck our export program" for U.S. farm commodities and result in over-production and lower prices on the farm front.

Under Melcher's proposal, government price supports for corn would be increased from $1.05 a bushel to $1.31.

Butz charged the move, although supported by some Farm Belt Republicans, is motivated by Democrats who want to make trouble for Nixon in 1972.

"I don't see why the secretary wants to succumb to those treasury Department people who want to farm out our farmers abroad so we can close the dollar gap," Melcher said.

Austria Plans New Park

VIENNA (AP) — Austria has decided to establish a national park with a difference. The people living in the area will be part of the park's attraction.

The park will be Austria's first. The governors of the three provinces sharing the park area in the Hohe Tauern mountain range recently signed a document on it, but they did not set up a timetable as to when it will be opened.

There are hundreds of national parks throughout Europe and the United States, but the Austrians claim their new park will be unique by displaying to visitors how people live in their natural surroundings.

The area includes small towns and villages as well as isolated mountain farms. More than a hundred thousand people live there.

The designation of national park was expected to result in an economic upswing in the area, which in turn should keep the people there, ending a development which has begun to worry Austrian officials. Uncultivated land in the mountain regions tends to become prone to mud slides and devastating avalanches.

Salutes were fired and people broke into cheers when the three governors signed the document at Heiligenblut at the foot of Austria's highest mountain, the 3,797-meter Grossglockner.

The Grossglockner is regarded as the king of the Austrian Alps. It will be the center of some 494,000 acres of towering mountains, lakes and romantic villages. The peaks in addition to the Grossglockner include the Gross Venediger, the Granatspitze and the Ankogel. The towns and villages include Heiligenblut, Badgastein, Mallnitz, Kals and Matrei.

A government official was asked why the area of the Hohe Tauern range was chosen as the first national park. He replied:

"Of course, Austria has many attractive regions which deserve to be maintained in their present character through a national park designation, such as the Salzkammergut (lake) area in Upper Austria and Salzburg or the Lake Neusiedler area at the Austrian-Hungarian border. But Austria above all is regarded as an alpine country and that is why our most mountainous region was decided on for the first National Park."

DEATH NOTICES

Charles C. Sullivan

Charles C. Sullivan, 84, of 609 West Second died at 2:40 a.m. Wednesday at Bothwell Hospital.

Mr. Sullivan was born in Miller County, March 27, 1887, son of the late Harrison M. and Nancy J. Lupardus Sullivan.

He married Alice R. Helton on Nov. 10, 1907, who survives.

Mr. Sullivan had been a resident of Sedalia since 1920 and was an engineer with the Missouri Pacific Railroad before his retirement.

Also surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Mildred L. Rowe, Kansas City; Mrs. Mary K. Gallagher, Palestine, Tex.; Mrs. Doris Cole, Pendleton, Ore.; one son, Charles L. Sullivan, Albany, Ore.; seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home with Rev. Medford E. Speaker, pastor of the East Sedalia Baptist Church, officiating.

Mrs. Jack Herndon will be soloist and Mrs. Keith Maynard, organist.

Grandsons will serve as pallbearers.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Dorothy Quattlebaum

Knob Noster — Mrs. Dorothy L. Quattlebaum, 42, of Knob Noster, died Tuesday evening at the Whiteman AFB Hospital.

She was born Aug. 5, 1929, in Racine Wis., daughter of the late Carl and Anna Wallendale Gerloff.

In December, 1948, she was married to Ailus F. Quattlebaum at Ft. Worth, Tex. He survives of the home.

She had lived in Knob Noster the past two and a half years following her husband's retirement from the Air Force.

Also surviving are two sons, Ailus Quattlebaum, Jr., of the home; Alan Lee Quattlebaum, Knob Noster; two sisters and seven brothers.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Quattlebaum Church in Bee Branch, Ark.

Burial will be in the Quattlebaum Cemetery.

The family will receive friends at the Sweeney-Phillips Chapel, Knob Noster, from 7 to 8 p.m. Friday.

Mamie Calvert

HARRISONVILLE — Mamie Huckabay Calvert, 86, Kansas City, died in a nursing home here Tuesday afternoon.

She was born in LaMonte, May 19, 1895, the daughter of Thomas D. and Samantha Breeden Huckabay. In 1912 she was married to Cecil LeRoy Calvert at Green Ridge. He preceded her in death in 1964.

Mrs. Calvert was a member of the Baptist Church and the Royal Neighbors of America.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Wilma Carson, Kansas City, Mo., and a granddaughter Kathryn Ann Floyd, address unknown.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Moore Funeral Home, LaMonte.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery, Sedalia.

The body is at the funeral home.

Reception To Honor Dr. Garner Odell

A reception honoring Dr. Garner Odell, who has served as pastor of Broadway Presbyterian Church since May, 1962, will be held from 7 to 9 o'clock tonight in the church's Fellowship Hall. Dr. Odell is retiring from the active ministry.

In addition to the reception, an 8 p.m. ceremony will note the burning of the mortgage bonds on the new church, construction for which began in 1963.

Pakistani Democracy Is Sought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto said today he intends to restore democratic rule as soon as possible in Pakistan but he held off convening a National Assembly elected a year ago which has never met, Radio Pakistan reported.

Until Bhutto took over the presidency last week, Pakistan had been under the military rule of Gen. Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan since March 1969.

A Pakistani newspaper, the Daily New Times, reported that Yahya is now under house arrest and will remain under detention during an inquiry into his wartime leadership.

According to Radio Pakistan, Bhutto said during a visit to Lahore that he could convene the National Assembly any time he wishes.

"But the people should realize the implications if this is done," he was quoted as saying. "There would be no East Pakistani representatives."

The National Assembly had 313 members after the elections were completed last December—169 from East Pakistan, where Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's Awami League won all but two seats, and 144 from West Pakistan, where Bhutto's Peoples party won 82 of the 138 elected seats.

But East Pakistan has now been renamed Bangladesh by Bengali secessionists who came to power two weeks ago after the Pakistani army surrendered in the province.

Several political and military leaders have demanded that Yahya be brought to trial for the loss of East Pakistan to India. Bhutto responded by naming a commission to conduct an investigation of the war.

The new administration held firm in its first major crisis, protest demonstrations against Bhutto's choice of Sardarghus Baksh Raisani as governor of Baluchistan Province.

Information Minister Abdul Hafiz Pirzada pledged punishment for instigators of Tuesday's protests in the provincial capital of Quetta, about 500 miles southwest of Rawalpindi. One person was killed and four were wounded in the turmoil.

The government said Raisani, an independent, would be sworn in today as scheduled. He is opposed by the National Awami party, a rival of Bhutto's People's party and the strongest faction in the province.

The National Awami president, Khan Abdul Wali Khan, said Bhutto was talking out of both sides of his mouth in claiming that national unity should override local political considerations.

"If Bhutto says he wants one Pakistan, then Sheikh Mujib is the choice of the majority of the people and he and not Bhutto should be chief martial law administrator," Wali said.

Sheik Mujibur Rahman's Awami League in East Pakistan—a separate party from Wali's—won a majority of seats in the National Assembly last year, but the assembly was never allowed to meet. Sheik Mujib has been a prisoner in West Pakistan since last March.

As Mujib's followers pressed ahead with their establishment of their new nation of Bangladesh, his stand-in, acting President Syed Nazrul Islam, said in Dacca he would welcome relations with the United States if President Nixon changes his policies. But his prime minister, Tajuddin Ahmed, said he could not say yet whether they would accept U.S. aid to rebuild the war-ravaged territory.

"Let us wait and see how the U.S. administration behaves," Ahmed said. "Beggars may not be choosers, but the people of Bangladesh are not beggars."

Re-investigations now are scheduled every six months for ADC cases and once a year for the aged, blind and disabled.

Changes in individual circumstances led to most of the ineligibility findings in the special study.

Carter cited as an example that an ADC family could be eligible one day on the basis of a deserting father, but could become ineligible the next day if the father returned home.

In January, Carter said, all welfare recipients will be notified that they must report changes in circumstances.

He listed a number of circumstances affecting eligibility:

A child may have either dropped out or returned to school; a mother may have been retained or lost a job; rent may have been raised or lowered; medicine not obtainable under medicaid may have been prescribed.

Some cases in the sample study showed some recipients receiving more than they were entitled, and others who got less than the benefits provided.

Carter said he regarded the study as merely an indicator and warned against attempting to project costs on the basis of such a small sample.

"These percentages," he said, "cannot be taken as representative of the entire case load since the sample is very small, and each case must be investigated and judged on its own particular situation."

He noted that in the 18-month period ending this month, the division staff handled 133,893 applications for assistance.

Says Egypt Completing War Moves

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat told a political meeting Tuesday that Egypt is completing preparations to go to war against Israel, but he did not close the door on diplomatic efforts for a peace settlement, the semiofficial newspaper Al-Ahram reported today.

"The battle of liberation is a must and we have already taken an irrevocable decision for it," Sadat declared.

"But the question of timing is connected with delicate internal and international assessments that are the competence of the leadership and not for public debate."

Israeli officials in Jerusalem expressed cautious optimism after reading reports of Sadat's speech.

"We don't know yet if there has been any change of direction," one Israeli official said. "It seems, however, that Egypt has, for the time being at least, decided to continue the search for a political solution."

Sadat, who has pledged that 1971 will be "the year of decision" in the Middle East, spoke at a meeting of members of the Peoples Assembly—parliament—and the central committee of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party.

"The decision is now under implementation and the battle of liberation will be long and bitter," Sadat emphasized. "But it does not mean that political moves will be halted because to do so will paralyze part of our effective potential."

Sadat was strongly critical of U.S. policy in the Middle East and made clear he rejects suggestions for the resumption of U.S.-sponsored negotiations for an interim Suez Canal settlement.

Sadat's line was echoed in reports presented to the meeting by cabinet ministers and in a statement issued later by the party's central committee.

Bangla Desh— Or Bangladesh

DACCA (AP) — The nation that used to be East Pakistan has acquired a name that's well known around the world, but this capital is confused as to its spelling.

Some make it Bangla Desh, two words, others Bangladesh.

The two words mean "Bengali nation." The one-word version is a contraction similar to the one that turned Viet Nam into Vietnam for general usage—although the Saigon government tends to use a hyphenated form.

M. R. Akhtar, the government's director of press and information, says the official spelling is Bangladesh. This style is used in Dacca newspapers and on most official documents. It is being adopted for Associated Press dispatches.

Akhtar acknowledges there's cause for confusion. The man who designed the nation's first postage stamp, not yet placed on sale, engraved it "Bangla Desh."

Canvass Welfare Recipients

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Less than 3 per cent of Missouri's welfare recipients were found to be ineligible for assistance in a special investigation conducted by the state Division of Welfare, Director Proctor N. Carter reported Wednesday.

Carter released the results of the report which he sent to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The division spot-checked cases in a nine-month period ending last June 30.

Only 28 recipients of aid to the aged, blind and disabled out of 931 cases checked were found to be ineligible for one or more payments. Currently, there are 119,000 on the rolls for adult assistance.

In aid to dependent children, only 34 of the 846 families checked were ineligible for one reason or another, and 11 of these discrepancies were technicalities, Carter said.

Approximately 53,000 families now receive ADC assistance.

These findings, if applied to the total caseload, would indicate that the ineligibility in adult assistance was 3 per cent and in ADC 2.7 per cent.

While the samples used in the study were small, Carter said, it did reveal the need for more frequent investigations on a case by case basis.

"At any given time," Carter said, "there are bound to be ineligible persons receiving assistance, but we are trying to hold the situation to a minimum."

"This requires more frequent investigations. The only method which would guarantee complete accuracy would be to have a large enough staff of well-trained workers so that every recipient could be re-investigated about once a week," he said.

The division has asked for an additional 295 persons, including 200 new caseworkers, in its budget request for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, Carter said, and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has approved the increase.

One-third of the caseworkers now employed have less than a year's experience, and many of those had to be shifted from normal duties to help the division conform to a federal requirement that recipients get their checks within 30 days.

This resulted in a slow-down in eligibility re-investigations, Carter said.

Re-investigations now are scheduled every six months for ADC cases and once a year for the aged, blind and disabled.

He noted that in the 18-month period ending this month, the division staff handled 133,893 applications for assistance.

He accused the administration of responding "only to those with entrenched wealth and power."

Lindsay said he chose Florida's March 14 primary as the first he plans to enter because he believes that the "economic and cultural diversity" of the state make it a "testing ground for the beliefs and principles I will run on."

After his Miami announcement, Lindsay visited two shopping centers and appeared before 200 senior citizens.

The shopping center crowds were not large.

The senior citizens, including some former New Yorkers, gave him a generally warm reception. There was some heckling at the shopping center.

Lindsay admitted he would lack support from major Democratic party leaders in Wisconsin, partly because he has only recently switched from the Republican party.

He expressed hope that the Wisconsin primary would provide a platform for many voices in the Democratic party to be heard.

Lindsay was heckled frequently by antiwar protesters. Most of the questions fired at him involved the Vietnam war.

Lindsay, who joined Democratic ranks in August, said he expected the Wisconsin campaign to be a nearly "singlehanded struggle."

His schedule today includes news conferences in Madison, the state capital, followed by others in Eau Claire, in rural Cadott 15 miles northeast of Eau Claire, and in La Crosse. In the evening, he is to be introduced at a reception in Milwaukee by Mayor Henry Maier, who has said his role as host does not mean he is endorsing Lindsay.

The 50-year-old New York mayor officially launched his presidential campaign Tuesday in Miami. "I run to help shatter the illusions spun by the Nixon administration to say that back where Americans live and work, we know the difference between words and deeds," he said.

He accused the administration of responding "only to those with entrenched wealth and power."

China Trip Preparations Are Beginning

WASHINGTON (AP) — A second White House advance team, headed by No. 2 man on the National Security Council staff, leaves today for Communist China to make technical preparations for President Nixon's February trip.

The Florida White House announcing this Tuesday as Peking made a simultaneous disclosure, said a 25-member delegation, including four representatives of the three major television networks, will spend about a week in mainland China.

Heading the team is Army Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., deputy to Henry A. Kissinger who twice this year made trips to Peking to lay the groundwork for Nixon's visit, set for Feb. 21-28. Kissinger is the President's assistant for national security affairs.

In addition to government and TV network personnel, the American group will include representatives of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and of Comsat, the Communications Satellite Corp.

Although officials would not acknowledge the supposition, the inclusion of a Comsat representative was taken as an indication that plans are in the works for live TV coverage of Nixon's visit.

Tapes, Player Stolen

Gary L. Goodson, 319 North Stewart, reported Tuesday night someone took a tape player and four tapes from his car while the car was parked on the west side of the Mike O'Connor lot on South Limit.

Wisconsin Goal For Lindsay

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay announced today he will enter Wisconsin's April presidential primary and lashed out at the resumption of bombing of North Vietnam, terming it "sheer madness."

Lindsay said that if elected president he would call for an immediate cease-fire and "get the troops out instantly."

The New York mayor, who was a Republican until last August, announced Tuesday in Miami that he would seek the Democratic nomination for the presidency in 1972.

He was introduced in Madison today by a man bearing Wisconsin's most illustrious political name, Bronson C. LaFollette, former state attorney general and 1968 Democratic candidate for governor.

Lindsay admitted he would lack support from major Democratic party leaders in Wisconsin, partly because he has only recently switched from the Republican party.

He expressed hope that the Wisconsin primary would provide a platform for many voices in the Democratic party to be heard.

Lindsay was heckled frequently by antiwar protesters. Most of the questions fired at him involved the Vietnam war.

Lindsay was heckled frequently by antiwar protesters. Most of the questions fired at him involved the Vietnam war.

Lindsay, who joined Democratic ranks in August, said he expected the Wisconsin campaign to be a nearly "singlehanded struggle."

His schedule today includes news conferences in Madison, the state capital, followed by others in Eau Claire, in rural Cadott 15 miles northeast of Eau Claire, and in La Crosse. In the evening, he is to be introduced at a reception in Milwaukee by Mayor Henry Maier, who has said his role as host does not mean he is endorsing Lindsay.

The 50-year-old New York mayor officially launched his presidential campaign Tuesday in Miami. "I run to help shatter the illusions spun by the Nixon administration to say that back where Americans live and work, we know the difference between words and deeds," he said.

He accused the administration of responding "only to those with entrenched wealth and power."

Lindsay said he chose Florida's March 14 primary as the first he plans to enter because he believes that the "economic and cultural diversity" of the state make it a "testing ground for the beliefs and principles I will run on."

After his Miami announcement, Lindsay visited two shopping centers and appeared before 200 senior citizens.

The shopping center crowds were not large.

The senior citizens, including some former New Yorkers, gave him a generally warm reception. There was some heckling at the shopping center.

China Trip Preparations Are Beginning

WASHINGTON (AP) — A second White House advance team, headed by No. 2 man on the National Security Council staff, leaves today for Communist China to make technical preparations for President Nixon's February trip.

The Florida White House announcing this Tuesday as Peking made a simultaneous disclosure, said a 25-member delegation, including four representatives of the three major television networks, will spend about a week in mainland China.

Heading the team is Army Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., deputy to Henry A. Kissinger who twice this year made trips to Peking to lay the groundwork for Nixon's visit, set for Feb. 21-28. Kissinger is the President's assistant for national security affairs.

In addition to government and TV network personnel, the American group will include representatives of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and of Comsat, the Communications Satellite Corp.

Although officials would not acknowledge the supposition, the inclusion of a Comsat representative was taken as an indication that plans are in the works for live TV coverage of Nixon's visit.

He accused the administration of responding "only to those with entrenched wealth and power."

Lindsay said he chose Florida's March 14 primary as the first he plans to enter because he believes that the "economic and cultural diversity" of the state make it a "testing ground for the beliefs and principles I will run on."

After his Miami announcement, Lindsay visited two shopping centers and appeared before 200 senior citizens.

The shopping center crowds were not large.

The senior citizens, including some former New Yorkers, gave him a generally warm reception. There was some heckling at the shopping center.

Lindsay admitted he would lack support from major Democratic party leaders in Wisconsin, partly because he has only recently switched from the Republican party.

He expressed hope that the Wisconsin primary would provide a platform for many voices in the Democratic party to be heard.

Lindsay was heckled frequently by antiwar protesters. Most of the questions fired at him involved the Vietnam war.

Lindsay, who joined Democratic ranks in August, said he expected the Wisconsin campaign to be a nearly "singlehanded struggle."

Police Court

Steven R. Wittman, 1405 South Quincy, improper driving, forfeited $10.

James W. Harlan, Otterville, failing to pay overtime parking tickets, forfeited $10.

Guy A. Rumsey, 903 West Fourth, running a stop sign, forfeited $10.

Divorces

Brenda Kay Head was granted a divorce from Willard Lee Head in Circuit Court Tuesday.

Ambulance Operation To Begin

A third Sedalia ambulance firm begins operation Saturday. It will be known as Sedalia Ambulance Service.

Owner F. H. Rush, 3004 South Ingram, said the firm will operate from his home on a 24-hour a day basis and will provide patrons with fully-equipped, fully-insured ambulance service.

Ralph Dedrick, city clerk, told The Democrat-Capital Rush secured his city license last Tuesday.

Rush, 49, currently operates his own gravel and sand hauling business and has worked for a number of trucking firms. Rush noted that in 29 years as a professional truck driver, he has never had an accident or been cited for a moving traffic violation.

Rush said he first considered the business venture in September upon learning Sedalia might be without any ambulance service at all.

Only one ambulance will be used at first, while purchase of a second ambulance is planned in a few months, Rush explained. He also noted radio control will probably not be installed for several months.

Grant Venue Change In Possession Case

A change of venue from Magistrate Court to Circuit Court has been granted two Sedalia men charged with illegal possession of wildlife.

Lanny B. Houk and James Cranfield, charged separately with "possessed deer and parts thereof," maintained in their petition for the change that Magistrate Frank Armstrong is biased and prejudiced in the matter and that they feel they could not receive a fair and impartial trial in that court.

The case stems from an incident Dec. 14, in which conservation agent Chester Vermaas executed a search warrant at Houk's Bar and Grill, 1600 South Grand. Vermaas reported he found parts of at least two deer, and that the parts were untaged and unregistered. Vermaas signed the complaint leading to the charge by the prosecuting attorney.

The change of venue was granted Tuesday.

Firemen Respond To Several Calls

Sedalia firemen were called out three times Tuesday and Wednesday with no serious damage reported.

The trucks were called to 1411 South Osage, the home of Dave Stratton, at 6:44 p.m. Tuesday, where an overheated oven had caused slight damage. The fire was out on arrival of the firemen.

A burned-out ballast in a light fixture in the office of Dr. Robert Thompson, 1102 South Grand, resulted in a fire call at 8:26 a.m. Wednesday. No damage, other than to the ballast, was reported.

An honest mistake led firemen to the Missouri State Bank on South Limit at 7:17 p.m. Tuesday. Firemen reported someone saw smoke from an incinerator and believed it was coming from the building.

Tips For Men Who Wear Hairpieces

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for that fellow who wore a hairpiece but it was always on crooked, or getting lifted in a high wind. My uncle had the same trouble. To add to his problems, one night he got his hairpiece hooked into his lady friend's earring and had to take it off his head to free himself.

Here are a few tips for men who wear hairpieces. First, buy a good one. The cheap pieces look like yarn after a few wearings and you can't clean them properly. Also, the color fades. Next, make sure the hairpiece is fit by a stylist who will tell you how much of your own hair to let grow so it can be properly tapered. Next, use a good adhesive agent to insure against slipping. Nothing is more embarrassing than to look in a mirror and discover that your toupe is on sideways.

I hope this letter will be of value to you, Ann. — Chapel Hill Fan

Dear Chap: If you're hinting that perhaps my husband might need the information, he doesn't. He has a wonderful head of hair. But I thank you in behalf of my readers who are not so fortunate.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to "Yuba" was logical but not human. I say it's better to sound like a fool than to keep the resentment bottled up and get an ulcer. Since that husband relieved his guilty conscience by confession to an affair which happened 13 years ago, his wife was entitled to the satisfaction of phoning the woman and telling her she knew. I speak from experience.

Several years ago, my husband and a woman employee had an errand to do in a hotel. They decided on the spur of the moment to check into a room. When he told me about it five years later I was furious. I telephoned the woman 2,500 miles away and the call cost — $14 but it was worth it. She swore on her Eastern Star ring that my husband was imagining things. I knew she was guilty but she lied her fool head off and sweat bullets. Needless to say, my husband did a little sweating, too.

I might be addle-brained, but we've been married for nearly

40 years and I don't have an ulcer. — Newport Beach

Dear New: You sound like a person who doesn't get ulcers, but I'll bet you've given a few. Thanks for writing about the joys of vindictiveness and the pleasures of revenge. I'm from a different school myself.

Dear Ann Landers: I like your sense of humor. Sometimes you get off a real corker, but you exceeded the limits of taste in a recent Confidential when you said, "Nuts to you" to a reader who complained because her letter did not appear in print. This was especially uncouth since her salutation was "Sweet To The Sweet." I believe an apology is in order. — Just Thinking Out Loud

Dear Just: I'm glad to you decided to "think out loud" on paper because I'd hate to have you go around believing I was so rude. Your letter is an excellent example of the damage that can be done by one small typographical error. Actually, the person who wrote said nuts to ME.

The column SHOULD have read as follows: "Confidential to Sweet To Sweet And Nuts To You: Sorry I can't publish every letter in the paper." It came out: "Confidential: Nuts to you. Sorry I can't publish every letter in the paper."

I appreciate the opportunity to clarify the foul-up.

Approve Proposal For Elevated Road

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The U. S. Department of Transportation Monday approved a Missouri Highway Commission plan for the building of a six-lane elevated highway connecting Kansas City's cross-town freeway with Interstate 70 in Kansas.

The eight-tenths of a mile link, to be called Interstate 670, is designed to accommodate 6,000 to 8,000 vehicles per hour. Robert N. Hunter, chief engineer of the Missouri Highway Commission, said.

Under the plan, the Missouri portion of the project would cost about $12.5 million, with about 90 per cent federal funding.

Say Farmers' Income Is Up For November, Middle Man Gets Less

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says in November farmers received $2 more for a "market basket" of retail food items while middlemen got $1 less than in October.

The market basket list includes farm-produced food items needed by a typical family for one year. Over-all, consumers paid an annual rate of $1.245 for the market basket in November, up $1 from October, according to the Economic Research Service.

Of the total cost, farmers received $480 as their share in November, and middlemen $765 for transporting, processing and selling the items to consumers. On a percentage basis, the farm value increased 0.3 per cent from October, while the middleman spread shrank 0.1 per cent. Although a minor reduction, the middleman spread was the second monthly decline in a row. In October, it narrowed by 1.8 per cent.

Most food items in retail stores remained about the same as in October. However, the ERS said, there were "sharp" retail price increases for some fresh vegetables—mainly lettuce, tomatoes, celery and peppers—which were offset by decreases for poultry, eggs and fresh fruit.

Farmers in November got higher prices for fresh vegetables, but most other items declined at the farm-price level, including substantial dips for eggs and citrus fruit, the report said.

The farmer's share of each dollar spent by consumers for food was 38 cents in November, unchanged from October but one cent more than a year earlier, the ERS said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The

Agriculture Department says turkey growers should slow down on production increases next year if they want to avoid lower market prices.

Turkey production should be reduced 10 per cent from a year earlier during the first six months of 1972 and then held to a four per cent gain from a year earlier during the second half, officials said.

"This change in the production pattern would avoid a price-depressing buildup of turkeys in cold-storage at the beginning of the main marketing season," the department said.

The recommendations are included in a "marketing guide" published by the department for turkey growers, breeders and the industry at large.

Officials urged one per cent fewer turkey breeder hens be kept for producing hatching eggs than in 1971.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some areas of the country not known for large production of winter wheat have boosted 1972 acreages sharply, according to an Agriculture Department survey.

A report issued last week showed 1972 winter wheat plantings up 9.2 per cent nationally from this year, including increases in the plains states.

But the report also showed acreage increases ranging up to more than 20 per cent in states not noted for large winter wheat output. Georgia farmers, for example, say they planted 290,000 acres for harvest next year, a 20 per cent boost from 1971.

Kentucky showed a 22 per cent gain, from 247,000 acres for 1971 to 301,000 next year. Two years ago Kentucky farmers planted only 219,000 acres of winter wheat.

Most showed gains. Only two in the southeast, for example, showed winter wheat acreages down from 1971. Florida plantings were reported at 70,000 acres, and North Carolina 290,000 acres, each down nine per cent from this year.

Killed in Crash

FORDLAND, Mo. (AP) — Sarah Howards, Rogersville, Mo., was killed Tuesday in a one-car accident in Webster County, about six miles north of here, the highway patrol reported.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Arnold Smith, 64, also of Rogersville.

The Smith car missed a curve on Route KK, ran off the road and threw both occupants from the car, the patrol said. Smith was listed in fair condition at a Springfield hospital.

President Signs Welfare Measure

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed into law a bill initiated by congressional conservatives which requires many healthy welfare mothers to work or accept job training.

Critics of the measure say Nixon's signature kills any chances for enactment of the other key parts of the President's welfare reform plan: a guaranteed annual income and welfare benefits for low-income job holders.

The bill Nixon signed at the Florida White House Tuesday during the congressional recess goes into effect July 1. It makes it mandatory for many of the 2.6 million parents in the controversial aid to families with dependent children program to sign up for available jobs or training.

Only the aged, the sick or disabled, those in school or mothers of children under school age are exempted.

The measure, attached to an amendment to a larger bill, was quietly passed by the House and Senate Dec. 15 with little debate or advance notice.

Welfare administrators say the problem is not finding welfare recipients to sign up for jobs, but finding any jobs at all for those who will or are able to work.

In signing the bill, Nixon acknowledged it amounts to something less than half a loaf. The welfare system, he said, "is yet in need of reform."

"Further economic incentives must be provided to keep families together, rather than to break them apart; to encourage welfare recipients to take jobs rather than to discourage them from working," Nixon said.

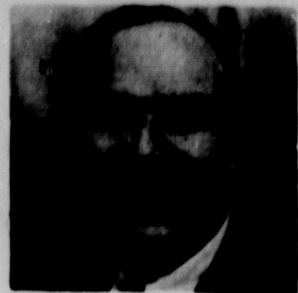

But he said the work-incentive measure "represents a significant step in the direction of welfare reform."

At the same time, he called for quick congressional passage of the rest of his welfare proposals.

The work-incentive plan closely parallels a portion of Nixon's over-all bill, now stalled in the Senate Finance Committee after passing the House. The Senate is expected to take up the bill after it reconvenes Jan. 18.

Finance Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., strongly opposes a provision calling for a guaranteed minimum annual income of $2,400 for a family of four.

Southern Democrats say the guaranteed income, based on a sliding scale according to family size, would encourage illegitimate births. Some liberals also oppose the over-all bill, saying it is not generous enough.

'Flea Collar' Found Effective

By PETER WEAVER

Q — I bought a flea collar for my dog and the box said that as soon as it was put on it would begin to destroy the fleas.

I have noticed quite a number of fleas on my couch. Does this mean the collar just chases the fleas away from the dog instead of killing them? — Mrs. C.S. Sedalia, Mo.

A — Veterinarians claim these collars are the safest, most convenient way to kill fleas. They definitely do kill fleas.

The collars are treated with a pesticide (usually di-chlorvos) which takes about a half a day to vaporize. The fumes are lethal for fleas but don't bother the animal.

The fleas in your couch probably are coming from eggs which fell off the dog at an earlier date. Launder the couch cover or treat it with a flea powder. Be sure the powder you use on the couch does not have the same ingredient contained in the flea collar. A double dose of the same pesticide might harm your pet.

Q — Have they ever determined if yogurt is harmful to the eyes? A report came out last year about tests with yogurt and the implication was that it could cause cataracts. Still, yogurt has not been taken off the market. — V.L.F., Falls Church, Va.

A — Yogurt is not dangerous. The report referred to tests made on rats that were given big doses of yogurt. It was later discovered that the rats probably got cataracts because they lacked an enzyme (which humans have) that would have prevented the disease.

Yogurt can be most beneficial, especially to adults who find that milk is beginning to give them stomach problems. It is estimated that up to 20 percent of American adults may be lacking in the enzyme "lactase" (not the same as the one the rats lacked) which is needed to break down milk sugar or lactose.

American Negroes, Orientals and Eskimos are even more susceptible to milk intolerance as they grow older.

For those who suffer problems with milk, yogurt can give the nutrition that milk offers with much less lactose. Skim milk or low-fat yogurt is nutritious and not fattening. But, be careful of yogurt mixed with strawberry, pineapple and other flavoring. All that added sugar is more fattening than the milk fat that was removed.

Q — I am a high school student and I will need a car next fall when I go to college. I read your article on automobile leasing and wonder if this is a good idea for young drivers with limited budgets? — R.O., Los Angeles, Calif.

Studying Draft For Guard Outfit

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Pentagon officials are studying the possibility of drafting young men into the Army National Guard.

There are some legal and political hangups, but guard sources say the draft may be the only way to bolster a sagging but critical part of the nation's military establishment.

Army Guard strength has dipped to its lowest level in six years—384,000, 16,000 below the authorized level.

Guard officials think they may lose another 80,000 citizen-soldiers before next fall and then face serious manpower shortages.

For now, they are relying on higher pay and other incentives to re-enlistment to reverse the diminishing size of units around the country.

And they emphasize that Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird would probably seek congressional approval before going ahead with a draft into the part-time Army. But the idea is a very live one, officials say.

The idea of using the draft to support the guard, and other military reserves, is startling because it comes even as the Nixon administration is trying to end the draft for the regular armed forces by mid-1973.

But Pentagon officials do not see any necessary conflict. They contend the government can continue to cut the size of the regular forces only if it can maintain a strong guard and reserves to meet crisis situations.

If the country and Congress can accept that reasoning, they may also accept drafting young men into the guard, the officials say.

But until that becomes necessary, officials are banking on what they call an "incentive package," chiefly a proposed re-enlistment bonus, to stem guard manpower losses.

With congressional pressure on to hold down the defense budget, guard officials fear that the bonus, costing $55 million, will fall by the wayside.

Defense sources indicated Laird would hold off on any decision regarding the draft and the guard until he has had a chance to gauge the effects of recent military pay increases, which trickle down to guardsmen, and of a recruiting campaign.

In any event, officials agree the law is hazy as to whether there is now authority to draft men into the National Guard.

Planning Answer To Union Address

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon plans to deliver his election-year State of the Union message to Congress on Jan. 20, and the Democratic majority is at work on a televised assessment of its own, to be delivered a day or two later.

The White House has advised Senate Republicans of the date but has not yet sent word as to whether the President will speak at mid-day or will make the speech in the evening, on prime television time.

The expectation on Capitol Hill is that the Nixon message will offer no dramatic, new proposals, but will concentrate upon urging a Democratic Congress to act on what he already has offered.

One Republican legislative tactician said Nixon won't get anything new out of Congress anyway. He said a Congress controlled by the Democratic party that will be challenging Nixon for the White House in 1972 will be in no mood to deal with new administration proposals.

But there is plenty of leftover business on the domestic agenda already presented by the President, with welfare reform, health care and insurance, and federal revenue sharing with the states and cities topping the pending list.

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien has speculated that Nixon may indeed post new tax proposals in 1972, suggesting the President may recommend a value-added tax, a form of national sales tax.

There has been speculation such a proposal might be advanced as a means of financing massive new federal aid to schools to ease the burden of local property taxes.

It could be an attractive offering in a campaign year, although the chances of approval in a Democratic Congress would be slim. But the administration might try to translate inaction on such a proposal into an issue with harried taxpayers during the campaign.

One certain Nixon offering will be legislation to confirm his devaluation of the dollar by raising the price of gold from $35 to $38 an ounce. Democratic leaders have pledged to seek prompt approval.

An annual assessment of the State of the Union by the party out of White House power has become a fixture at the opening of Congress.

The State of the Union message, on a Monday, will be broadcast live by the major television and radio networks.

The party out of power has been offered free television time for its assessment since Republicans were doing the rebuttals during the administration of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Seattle Worries Sharman

Los Angeles Racks Up 29th Straight Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are alone at the top of the pro basketball world. But Coach Bill Sharman keeps looking for new mountains to climb.

"Seattle is the team we have to beat," the coach said Tuesday night after the Lakers had lengthened the National Basketball Association's longest-ever winning streak to 29 games with a 105-87 victory over Buffalo.

The SuperSonics, Los Angeles' next opponent in Seattle Thursday night, have been the victims three times during the streak, but Sharman reminded his listeners, "They are the only team to beat us on the road this year and they are No. 2 in our division."

What he didn't mention was that Seattle trails the Lakers by 14 games in the Pacific Division.

The Lakers' fantastic streak is overshadowing some other burgeoning winning skeins. The Boston Celtics, down by 16 points in the third period, rallied to make it nine in a row with a 120-116 triumph over Philadelphia.

The New York Knicks ran their string to seven, pulling away from Detroit in the second quarter and trouncing the Pistons 119-100. And Chicago's streak reached six as the Bulls turned back the Milwaukee Bucks 116-105 with BOB Rule getting 27 points in the second half and outscoring Kareem Jabbar 41-35.

Elsewhere, Baltimore walloped Cincinnati 119-87 and Cleveland nipped Portland 112-111.

The expansion Braves gave the Lakers an argument most of the way and might have won but for 30 turnovers. A rash of Buffalo ball-handling mistakes helped the Lakers on a 25-6 blitz in the final 10 minutes of the first half, and another series of errors by the Braves kept the Los Angeles lead safe after it had dwindled to 89-82 with 5½ minutes to play.

Elmore Smith, Buffalo's 7-foot rookie from Kentucky State, scored 17 points in the first quarter, when the Braves took a 34-27 lead. He wound up with 32 points and 20 rebounds, both game highs.

The Lakers parceled out the points more evenly, with Jerry West leading at 24, Chamberlain adding 23, Gail Goodrich 20 and Happy Hairston 19. Hairston had 14 rebounds and Chamberlain 13.

The Lakers are now within one victory of their second straight flawless month.

After Boston wiped out Philadelphia's 16-point lead, the 76ers rallied and nosed in front 116-115 with 1:17 left. But John Havlicek regained the lead for the Celtics with 37 seconds remaining and Jo Jo White added three free throws. Havlicek's 36 points led all scorers. Billy Cunningham had 24 for the 76ers.

New York's rout of Detroit spoiled the return to action of the Pistons' Dave Bing, who underwent surgery for a detached retina following the season opener. Although he had not even scrimmaged since the injury, Bing scored 21 points. Walt Frazier paced the Knicks with 30.

Chicago forged its triumph over Milwaukee before a record home crowd of 19,497 and sliced the Bucks' Midwest Division lead to four games. The Bulls ran off nine consecutive points early in the final period, paced by Jerry Sloan, to take an 89-82 lead and were never headed.

Baltimore, helped by cold Cincinnati shooting, steadily pulled away from the Royals behind the scoring of Archie Clark and Jack Marin and Wes Unseld's rebounding. The Bullets led by nine after one period, 16 at the half 20 after three and 31 at one stage in the final period. Clark scored 26 points, Marin 21.

Cleveland trailed Portland 83-66 in the third period but cut the deficit to nine entering the final quarter. Walt Wesley then scored 11 points to spark the final rally, including the winning point on a free throw when he was fouled by Charley Yelverton at the buzzer. John Johnson tallied 29 points and Wesley 27 for the Cavaliers while Geoff Petrie's 26 was high for Portland.

K-State Hangs On

Iowa State Drops Hawks In Opening-round Game

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri battles Colorado and Iowa State runs up against Kansas State tonight in the semifinals of the 26th annual Big Eight Conference preseason basketball tournament.

Both Iowa State and Kansas State, after blowing fair leads, had to scrap for their lives Tuesday night.

Iowa State knocked off defending champion Kansas 91-88, and the Wildcats nudged Oklahoma 62-60. In each game, a late goal tending basket aided the victor.

Colorado, 2-6, breezed into the semifinals Monday night by whipping Oklahoma State 83-62, and Missouri, 8-1, did likewise by subduing Nebraska 76-64.

Two loser's bracket games this afternoon sent Oklahoma State, 1-6, against Nebraska, 5-5, and Kansas, 3-5, against Oklahoma, 3-4.

Iowa State, 6-4, once led the Jayhawks by 16 points but Bud Stallworth came up with some brilliant shooting in the last five minutes that finally sliced the Cyclones' lead to one point at 87-86.

Clinton Harris was credited with the basket on goal tending against Kansas with 45 seconds left. Stallworth closed the gap to one point again with 31 seconds showing but that was as close as Kansas could get.

Time after time when Kansas was trying to get back in the game earlier, Gene Mack came through with long shots. Mack led all scorers with 34 points and in the first player to make that many in the stourney since Kansas State's Bob Boozer did it in an overtime game with Missouri in 1956.

Stallworth collected 30 points. Kansas' cause was hurt when the Jayhawks lost three regulars on personal fouls. Aubrey Nash with 17:07 left, Randy Canfield with 16:57 remaining and Wilson Barrow 10 minutes later.

"We played sporadic ball much of the night," said Iowa State's Maury John, in his first season as a Big Eight coach. "We would be brilliant for about four or five minutes, then get careless. Actually, it was good for us. We panicked and then were able to recover our poise. It was a good win for us."

Kansas Coach Ted Owens said he thought his team "played hard enough and well enough at the end to win. But that's what I'm trying to point out to our squad. We can't depend on a final surge every time."

Owens said the loss of Nash hurt the Jayhawks, adding, "I mean he's one of our two best players."

Kansas State, 5-5, had nine-point leads twice in the second half but the Sooners kept pecking away and finally got even at 44-44 with 10:54 left on Scott

Martin's field goal, Tom Holland's free toss and Bobby Jack's two-pointer in succession.

The game see-sawed back and forth after that, and the Wildcats didn't take the lead for good until Bob Chipman's field goal with 4:08 to go boosted Kansas State out front 55-54.

With 1:53 left, Holland, after the Sooners had fallen four points behind, made it 58-56.

Thirty-five seconds later, Chipman got a goal on goal tending. The closest Oklahoma got after that was 61-60 with 13 seconds left. Holland scored 24 points for Oklahoma Jack 14. Ernie Kusnyer was high for the Wildcats with 14.

Coach Jack Hartman of Kansas State said the "only thing I was pleased with was our defense. It kept us around. We'd tried hard but were playing very tight. You've got to be lucky to win this type of game. I was impressed by both Iowa State and Kansas."

"Kansas State hustled harder than we did at crucial times," Sooner Coach John MacLeod admitted. "It didn't seem like either team wanted to win very badly."

MacLeod said two Oklahoma sophomores, Ted Evans and Holland, are going to help the club later in the year.

Battle for Top Spot

Pressure Enough to Get NU, Tide Up for Game

MIAMI (AP) — The pressure is just as heavy on No. 2, which is trying harder, as on No. 1, Nebraska's Bob Devaney said today, insisting that Alabama would have no psychological edge in Saturday night's Orange Bowl football game.

"We want to win the national championship and remain No. 1," the pixieish head coach of the Cornhuskers said. "Alabama, as No. 2, will be just as eager to prove it should be on top."

The pressure is the same with both teams. Neither will have a problem getting up for this game—too much is at stake."

Nebraska risks a 31-game unbeaten streak and the national college crown against a strong-running, defense-minded Alabama team that swept through an 11-game card with its wishbone-T.

Comparing Alabama with Oklahoma, the Big Eight rival whom Nebraska beat 35-31 in a dramatic Thanksgiving Day duel, Devaney said:

"Oklahoma was not rated a great defensive team. We felt we could move on them, if we ever got the ball. Alabama is a great defensive team, both against running and the pass. It makes few mistakes."

"The difference in facing Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and Alabama's Johnny Musso is this—we felt we could stop Pruitt on the wide plays and we did. We may stop Musso wide but he'll hurt us some place else. He is a great runner."

Both teams ended heavy training Tuesday and prepared to taper off for the rest of the week. After today, players will be placed behind a palm tree curtain, unavailable to outsiders.

The Cornhuskers held a stiff workout at North Dade Junior College, then took off for the races. Alabama drilled at the Miami Academy.

"We don't have any time for social things—and we don't want any of it," said Musso, the workhorse of Alabama's attack. "We came here to win the national championship, and that's all we are thinking about."

Devaney and his Nebraska team appear more relaxed, though no less determined, in the task confronting them.

"The boys can go to shows when they like, as long as they get to bed at a reasonable hour," Devaney said. "They know what they're supposed to do. We don't keep a tight rein on them."

Devaney, a plumpish, pleasant man whose career coaching record of 126-28-6 is the best in college football, has been loose and jovial at press conferences. His jokes have enlivened the normally dull, technical sessions.

Alabama's veteran Paul "Bear" Bryant, with more victories to his credit than any active coach—his record is 211-66-15—has appeared much more solemn, but close associates are worried that he hasn't been even more pessimistic.

"When the Bear is ready to pull off a big one, he poor-mouths a lot—he talks about how tough it's going to be on his poor, stringy boys," one Alabama spokesman noted.

"But not this time. He seems to be wanting to keep the boys' spirits up. About the most pessimistic thing he's said is that Alabama hasn't played a game this year good enough to beat Nebraska."

"But he won't say they won't be that good Saturday night."

Loyal Fan Hasn't Missed Tourney Since It Began

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Dr. A. B. McConnell is back in Kansas City for the 26th annual Big Eight Conference preseason basketball tournament.

McConnell, 81, of Burlington, Kan., has not missed a tournament since it began in 1946.

Still active daily in the practice of medicine, McConnell says "I come to see the players and judge the teams. I size them up and then I can appreciate them when I watch them on television or listen to them on radio for the rest of the season."

Except for the annual preseason tournament, Dr. McConnell's practice keeps him close to home where he is content to watch high school games around Burlington. "I've loved the game ever since I played forward for the Washington and Jefferson College team back in 1910, 1911 and 1912. It was the only sport I lettered in," he commented.

"The game is faster now than when I played it. All we knew was the man to man—we'd never heard of a zone defense. Maybe it was a little rougher, too. There was a lot more wrestling when you had the ball and another fellow wanted to get a hold of it. It's a much more scientific game now, too," he concluded.

Dr. McConnell is accompanied by his wife to the tournaments, but she confesses she's not that much of a fan. The trips "give me a chance to bum around the shops downtown in the afternoon," she observed.

Bengals Defeated In Semis, 62-58

SPRINGFIELD — In what Coach Jim Dinsdale termed as his team's "best overall effort of the season" the Sedalia Smith-Cotton Tigers dropped their sixth loss in eight games, 62-58, to Springfield Parkview in the semifinals of the Springfield Glendale Holiday Basketball Tournament, here Tuesday night.

"This was the first time this year that I felt our players put two strong halves together," Dinsdale commented as he looked back at the see-saw battle, which saw the lead change a number of times.

"We had only five turnovers, all in the second half, making it one of our best efforts of the season," the S-C mentor added.

The Tigers, who shot a torrid 22 of 29 from the free throw line against Columbia less than a week ago, missed more than half their 25 charity tosses in the game. S-C sank only 12 of those 25 attempts. Dinsdale felt that this area could well have been his team's biggest fault in the game.

The victory extended the undefeated Vikings string this season to 9-0; it also marked the second time in the current campaign that Parkview had defeated the Tigers.

Other action Tuesday night saw host Glendale earn the other berth in Thursday night's championship contest with a 72-58 victory over West Plains.

Jefferson City was blasted for the second straight night, 98-80, by Springfield Kickapoo in the consolation game.

The Jefferson City and the Sedalia losses in Tuesday night's action saw the number of consecutive victories this season posted by Springfield schools over Central Missouri Conference foes reach ten. CMC teams have yet to post their first win of the season over a Springfield opponent.

S-C took a 16-14 lead by the close of the first period, but dropped behind by five, 31-26, at the intermission.

The Tigers crept back to within two, 46-44, by the end of the third period of play. Smith-Cotton center Kim Anderson was the game's leading scorer with 19; Steve Herzberg turned in another standout performance with 17. However, those were the only two Tigers in double figures.

Parkview placed three men in two numerals; Wade Palmer was the top scorer for the Vikings with 17, while Steve Timmons checked in with one less at 16. John Fischer added 10 points.

Action broke Wednesday night, but is scheduled to resume Thursday with S-C meeting West Plains at 6:30 p.m. for third place; Glendale and Parkview will battle for the tourney title at 8 p.m.

Scoring
Parkview (62) — Palmer 17, Timmons 16, Fischer 10, O'Leary 8, Bennett 8, Smith 2, Morrison 1.
Smith-Cotton (58) — Anderson 19, Herzberg 17, Maple 9, Tatman 7, Sanders 4, Fingland 2.

Taylor Player of Year

United Press International has named Kansas City wide receiver Otis Taylor as the UPI's Player of the Year in the American Football Conference. The rangy Chiefs' receiver edged out Miami quarterback Bob Griese in the voting. Taylor almost single-handedly put the Chiefs in the American Football Conference playoffs. He is shown above making a one-handed catch against the Buffalo Bills. (UPI)

The Razorbacks made only 10 of 36 shots from the field in the first half for a 27 per cent average. Idaho State shot 54 per cent in the same period to lead 45-26 at halftime.

Arkansas guard Martin Terry led a comeback in the second half, scoring 20 points after putting in only six in the first half. Pushing his team to within six points with six minutes left

So. Carolina Makes Finals

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

When you've coached college basketball as long as Frank McGuire and Bobby Knight have, you notice the little things.

McGuire noticed some familiar faces watching Tuesday night as his third-ranked South Carolina Gamecocks charged into the finals of the Quaker City Basketball Tournament by ripping Boston College 86-64.

And Knight noticed Brigham Young's zone and knew the only way to beat it was a deliberate offense that went only for the good shot. So that's the way his seventh-ranked Indiana club whipped eighth-rated BYU 61-50 in the opening round of the Old Dominion Classic.

Tom Riker, 6-foot-10 senior, and Danny Traylor, 7-foot sophomore, led South Carolina to an early 22-8 bulge against over-matched BC, combining for 15 points in the early surge.

The Gamecocks, 7-0, controlled the boards so thoroughly that Boston College was shut out completely in offensive rebounds in the first half and trailed by 20 points at the intermission.

Traylor finished with 22 points and Riker had 15 for SC. Bob Carver added 16 for the Gamecocks.

In other Quaker City semifinal action, Villanova ran off 12 straight points in the second half and defeated No. 20 Tennessee 76-67.

Chris Ford's pinpoint passing led the Wildcats' spurt that turned a one-point Tennessee lead into an 11-point bulge for Villanova.

In the Old Dominion Classic, Indiana's deliberate attack wore down Brigham Young.

Steve Downing scored 23 points and grabbed 23 rebounds for Indiana while Joby Wright added 18 points and 12 rebounds. That was enough to contain BYU's Kresimir Cosic, the 6-foot-11 Yugoslavian pivot, who had 21 points.

"I realize it was a slow game for the crowd to watch," said Knight, "but when you come down against a zone like was faced most of the night and go for the good shot, you're not going to have a high-scoring game."

In the other first round game of the Old Dominion tournament, Old Dominion walloped Rice 114-86.

Second-ranked Marquette won the Milwaukee Classic, edging No. 17 Marshall 74-72 in the title game. It was the fourth straight tourney title for the host Warriors.

Bob Lackey and Allie McGuire combined to convert 17 of 19 second half free throws and the foul line accuracy doomed Marshall. McGuire's last two free throws with 17 seconds left, gave Marquette a four-point edge and clinched the victory. Lackey finished with 23 points to top the Warriors.

Fifth-ranked Southern California was jolted by No. 14 Penn 88-67 in the opening round of the Kodak Classic. Phil Hankinson hit 21 points and Bob Morse added 20 for the Quakers.

In the other Kodak Classic opener, St. Bonaventure slugged host Rochester 84-60.

Controversy dotted play in other holiday tournaments.

Fordham and Louisville gained the finals of the Holiday Festival at New York's Madison Square Garden with the Rams eliminating Providence 77-72 in overtime and the 15th-ranked Cardinals whipping St. Peters, N.J. 126-80.

Louisville refused to come onto the court until after the National Anthem was played, citing "superstition," and causing a walkout by veteran Garden public address announcer John Condon, who refused to work the game after the incident.

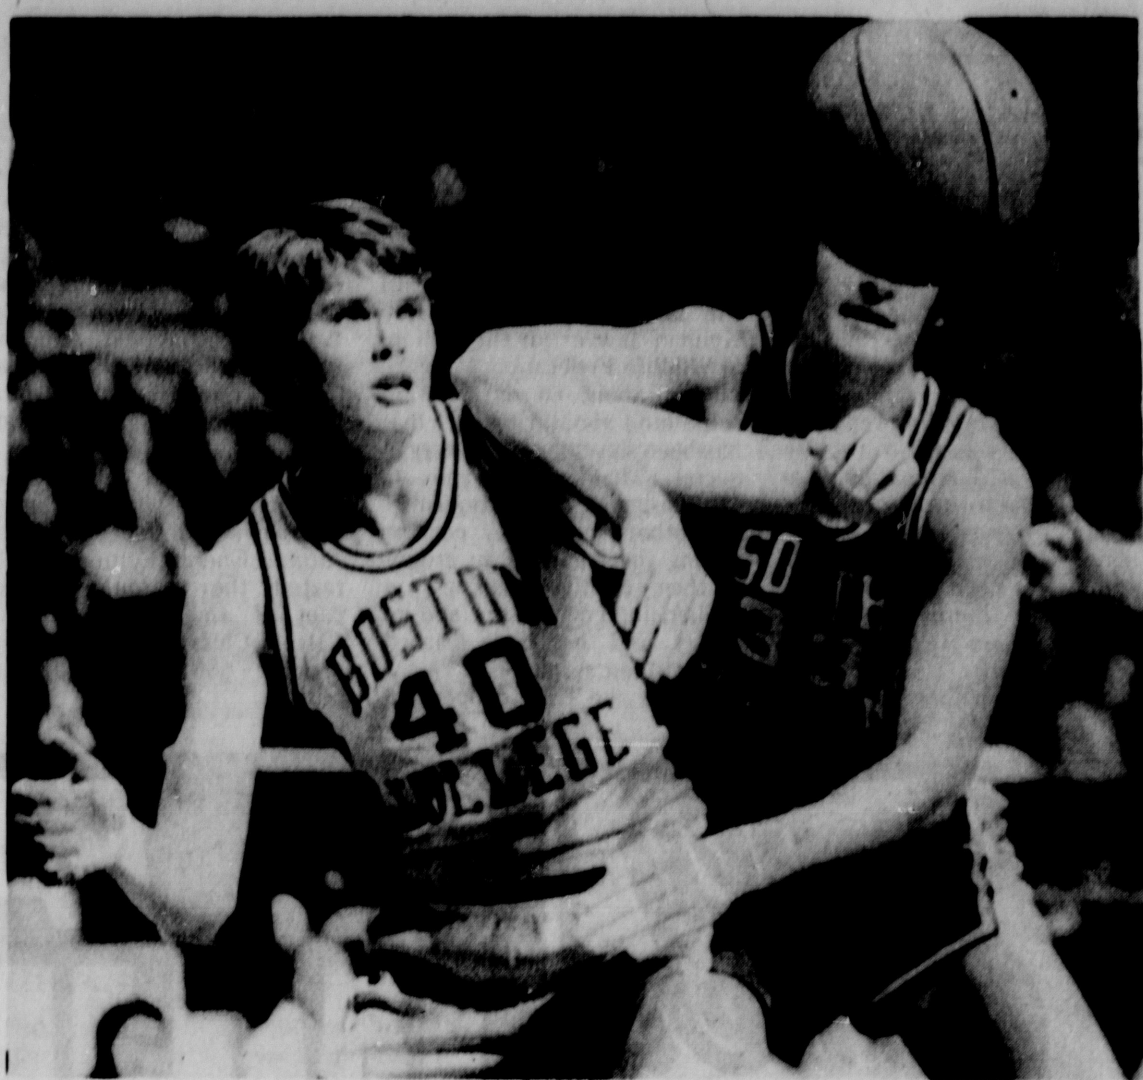

Ron Thomas' 26 points led Louisville, which won its seventh straight since losing its opener to Florida. The National Anthem affair was "just a matter of superstition," according to Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "My team once honored the National Anthem and we lost. Now we just won't come out until it's played."

Tom Sullivan's five-straight overtime points led Fordham past Providence. But Woytowicz contributed 21 points to the Ram attack and Ken Charles dropped in a pair of free throws with 30 seconds left, forcing the game into overtime.

In the consolation game of the Astro-Bluebonnet classic, winless Louisiana State was tagged with five technical fouls and bowed to Texas A&M 73-68. Jeff Overhouse led the Aggies with 26 points.

Referee Bob Smith ejected LSU Coach Press Maravich, tagging him with three consecutive fouls in the final minute of the first half. Then, consecutive technicals against LSU in the final minute of the game gave Overhouse two more free throws which he converted to put the game away.

"The only thing I can say," said Referee Smith, "is that the LSU coach started it. Coach Maravich, isn't that his name, was moaning about inconsistency. I struck a technical on him and he said, 'Give me two.' I warned him that the third technical would put him out of the game and he said, 'Give me three.'"

Drawing Attention

A loose ball during the opening half of the Boston College, South Carolina game in the Quaker City Tournament in Philadelphia Tuesday drew the attention of Mike Raterink, left, and Danny Taylor (33). The Gamecocks rolled over Boston College and gained a berth in the tourney championship, 86-64. (UPI)

'Sooner Power'

Kicker Doesn't Take Back Seat

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Most of the attention on an explosive Oklahoma football team has been directed toward quarterback Jack Mildren and half-back Greg Pruitt, but guess who's leading the nation in place kicking?

John Carroll, a sophomore record holder who wants to be more than a kicker—that's who.

Carroll's 80 points by kicking is a Big Eight Conference record for a single season and was tops in the nation this year. Because of the highly efficient Sooner offense Carroll has attempted only 12 field goals. And made nine of them. He converted 53 of 62 extra point attempts.

But the lanky, 6-foot-5, 205-pounder, also works as a wide receiver and is being counted on heavily by Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks to step up to full-time playing status next year to help fill the void created by two graduating seniors.

"I think kicking comes easier when you're playing regularly," said Carroll. "When all you're doing is kicking you stand along the sideline and get to thinking too much about what you're going to do and get nervous."

A native of Norman, Okla., home of the Sooners, Carroll had offers from "20 or 30 colleges." He said he chose Oklahoma over the others with realization that in all probability his action as a sophomore would be pretty much limited to kicking.

"Coach Fairbanks recruited me as a kicker, but he knew I could play end too and said I would get a chance to do both," said Carroll.

Many college and professional teams have expert kickers who are ill equipped physically to do anything but kick.

However, Carroll views himself as much as "a full-time player as a kicker" and said kicking skills come more or less naturally to him.

"I started kicking when I was in the third grade," he said. "It seemed that whatever team I was on when I was growing up, the coaches knew I could kick. But I never concentrated on just being a kicker."

As a high school standout, Carroll was a tight end on offense, and a cornerback on defense in addition to being his team's punter and placekicker.

He has punted 14 times this year for Oklahoma, because of injuries to the regular punter, and has a 39-yard average. He has caught two passes for 28 yards.

Oklahoma wound up rough work Tuesday for Saturday's Sugar Bowl date with Auburn. Fairbanks said his team had made great strides in perfecting ways to stop the Tiger passing game.

Auburn was due to arrive here late Wednesday and hold brief workouts Thursday and Friday.

Carroll, Holum Capture Senior Skating Honors

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dan Carroll of St. Louis and Dianne Holum of Northbrook, Ill., each warming up for the Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, in February, captured the senior men's and ladies' titles Tuesday in the two-day Holiday Open speed skating meet.

Carroll and Miss Holum each won two events Tuesday. Carroll won the 1,500 meter test in 2:08.9 and the 5,000 in 7:58.6 for an over-all two-day score of 178.759. Olympian Bill Lanigan of New York City finished second over-all at 183.319.

Miss Holum, preparing for her second Olympic trip, won the ladies' 1,000 in 1:34.7 and the 3,000 in 5:14.3 for a two-day total of 195.666. Leah Poulos, Northbrook, also an Olympian, finished second at 202.150.

Jim Chapin, St. Louis, won the junior men's title with 129.883.

The senior contestants skated four races in two days and the juniors three races. About 90 athletes took part at the 400-meter Olympic style rink in suburban West Allis.

about my last defeat," he said. "It was in the ninth grade and, at the time, who would have ever guessed my luck would have been so good?"

Ealey and All-American defensive tackle Mel Long led the Rockets to their 35th consecutive triumph Tuesday night in a 28-3 smashing of Richmond in the Tangerine Bowl.

"Sure, I want a shot in pro football," said the 6-foot Ealey. "Some people say I can't make the pros as quarterback, but I'd sure like to try."

Richmond, Southern Conference Champions despite a 5-6 record, was not completely shocked at losing to the team that hasn't tasted defeat in three seasons.

But the gritty Spiders took a 3-0 lead and stayed close until Toledo made it a rout with two fourth quarter touchdowns.

Joe Schwartz ran for two scores on short first bursts of 1 and 3 yards. And Ealey, who completed 14 of 23 passes, rammed over from the one for a touchdown.

Still, the 230-pound Long was the man who turned the game around. He had predicted it would be a memorable night.

Long told coach Jack Murphy before the game, "I'm gonna go out and win the most valuable award." And, he did.

Ealey was acclaimed the outstanding back.

The muscular tackle gave Toledo a 7-3 lead early in the second quarter when he crushed Richmond quarterback Ken Nichols, causing a fumble in the end zone. Long leaped on the ball for a touchdown.

Kick Helps Tie Sales

MIAMI (AP) — There's been a big boom in the sales for Gero Yepremian since he kicked his winning field goal in pro football's longest game. But the little Miami kicker knows that a guy like Bubba Smith can cause an instant recession.

"People who are selling my ties tell me they're very happy," Yepremian reported today before the Dolphins' workout for Sunday's American Conference Championship game against Baltimore. "A lot of people are calling the stores ordering my ties."

They are doing so in the wake of Saturday's 37-yard field goal that produced a 27-24 victory over Kansas City after 22 minutes, 40 seconds of sudden-death overtime. That kick made the 5-foot-7 soccer-style booter the No. 1 local hero.

That has meant immediate increase in sales for Yepremian's tie business—one he began following the 1967 season when he was cut by the Detroit Lions.

"When I lost that job I started making ties," said Yepremian, a Cypriot of Armenian heritage who left the island during the civil war in 1960 and landed in London with his family. "My parents had always been in the fabric business," Yepremian explained. "When we arrived in London I went to work in a factory as a cutter making tunics for the guards at Buckingham Palace. When Detroit cut me I started the tie business."

Business sometimes rises and falls with his kicks, so his current concern is Smith, mammoth defensive end of the Colts.

Yepremian kicked the winning field goal in a 17-14 victory over Baltimore the first time the teams met this season, but had one blocked by the 6-foot-7, 295-pound Smith during a 14-3 loss in their second meeting.

Smith also blocked two field goal attempts in the playoff game against Cleveland in which the Colts advanced to the AFC championship game and has a total of four for the season on a club that has blocked an unusually high number of seven.

"He does that a lot of times," Yepremian acknowledged. "What I have to do is concentrate more on my kicks and kick higher than I normally do. You lose about five yards distance, but when you know the other team has a terrific rush you have to do that."

Still, the balding, unlikely looking hero has supreme confidence in his ability, a product of the way the Dolphins have treated him since he joined them as a free agent in 1970.

Keeping Things in Order

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — While the South all-stars were wrapping up their final game as collegians with a 9-0 victory in the Blue-Gray football classic, their head coach was also pacing the sidelines for what was probably his last time before stepping into the professional ranks himself.

Bill Peterson, who guided the Gray squad through a giant defensive battle Tuesday night, had learned earlier in the day that Rice University was not going to put up a legal fight to keep him as their head football coach.

His send-off in the nationally televised game in Cramton Bowl was on a winning note, but the victory was earned in a manner which Peterson is not known for.

He has been one of college football's biggest proponents of the pro passing style, and under his command on the Gray squad were two quarterbacks with proven passing abilities —Steve Judd of Texas Christian and Joe Gilliam of Tennessee State.

However, the expected aerial fireworks were dampened by fierce defensive work, and it took a 7-yard touchdown scamper by Staleby Vincent of Rice and a 19-yard field goal by Tennessee's George Hunt to nail down the hard-fought win.

The Gray quarterbacks completed eight of 17 attempts and had three of them picked off. The Blues, with two good arms in quarterbacks Neil Gaff of Wisconsin and Gary Fox of Wyoming, fared even worse, completing only seven of 25 tosses. However, they registered no interceptions.

Pointing up the defense's contributions to the victory was the selection of defensive end Guy Roberts of Maryland as the game's most valuable player. The choice of the 6-foot, 225-pounder marked the first time in the classic's 34-year history that the award went to a defensive player.

Stable's touchdown bolt on the first play of the second period climaxed a 74-yard drive which was highlighted by hard charges from Vincent and Art Cantrelle of Louisiana State as well as timely completions by Judd.

Hunt's field goal came late in the fourth quarter, shortly after the Blues' muffed their best chance of the night by running out of downs at the South 18.

Afterwards, North head coach John Jardine of Wisconsin voiced an opinion which most fans at the game would have agreed with considering the Blue squad's offensive talents. "One thing I thought we'd at least be able to do," he said, "was put something on the board."

Conservationists Are Now Applying Bite to Their Barking

(Editor's note: Small groups of private citizens who stopped wringing their hands to rock the boat have turned the words "environment protection" into a synonym for aggressive action. Here, in the first of two articles, an Associated Press specialist chronicles the revolt of the bird-watchers.)

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like grains of sand in a ball-bearing, environment lawyers are sending bad vibrations through the machinery of government and industry.

Officials and executives who once wrote off conservationists as "bird-watchers and butterfly-chasers" now wince at the mention of the trans-Alaska pipeline, or Calvert Cliffs, or DDT or the Cross-Florida Barge Canal.

For each of those names represents an environmental lawsuit that tied the government or industry, or both, in knots while setting legal precedents for still more lawsuits.

In its annual report this year, the President's Council on Environmental Quality called citizens' suits "the most striking recent development in environmental law."

"In the face of a history of administrative decisions that ignored environmental impacts and against a tide of legislative delays in developing pollution control law," said the Council, "citizens concluded that they must use the courts to cure the neglect."

The result has been a rapid growth during the past two years of organizations specializing in the environmental lawsuit. They are small—anywhere from two staff members to two dozen—and usually subsist on donations, foundation grants, and membership dues.

Some of the offices were set up by lone-wolf lawyers, some by independent new groups, some by long-established conservation organizations.

Some receive tax-exempt financing and are legally barred from lobbying. Others may, and do, lobby vigorously.

The Natural Resources Defense Council, founded a year ago, claims to be the largest with nine staff attorneys.

Environmental Defense Fund, one of the earliest and best known, has eight lawyers and five scientists on its staff.

The vintage year for environmental law offices was 1969. That year, David Brower was dumped from leadership of the Sierra Club and set up a more militant group called Friends of the Earth; the venerable Izaak Walton League began filing environmental suits; and a band of young lawyers formed the Center for Law and Social Policy to file "public interest" actions, including environmental matters.

A year later, Ralph Nader moved beyond his original consumer-protection concerns and established the Public Interest Research Group whose scope includes environmental matters.

Since then, older conservation organizations have entered the field. The National Wildlife Federation hired its first full-time environmental lawyer last January (it now has two); and last August the Sierra Club fielded an auxiliary Sierra Legal Defense Fund.

The National Audubon Society and the Wilderness Society have not mounted legal campaigns on their own but have participated in lawsuits, and Audubon helped launch the Environmental Defense Fund.

The group that organized 1970's "Earth Day" observance, Environmental Action, has stood aside from the legal battlefield to concentrate on public education and watchdog activities.

Environmental Action, the Nader group and Friends of Earth have not sought tax exemptions for contributions, and thus are free to lobby for legislation.

The tax-exempt groups, officially non-partisan, are barred by law from lobbying, and this is a source of growing frustration among them.

They have more power to oppose problems than to propose solutions, a dilemma that has retarded progress toward supplying the nation's legitimate fuel and energy needs.

Some environmentalists contend the lawsuits are themselves positive contributions which need no apology.

"In many instances, adverse environmental impact (of a project) are kept secret until the last moment," said Bob Kennan, lawyer for the National Wildlife Federation. "You're talking about 60 days to do something about a project that has been developed for years in secret. That's what leads to the charges of obstructionism."

Another common concern among the legal action groups is their relative weakness in challenging government and industry, and they have learned to pool their resources.

—FOE and EDF cooperated on a suit which has stalled construction of the proposed $2.5 billion trans-Alaska oil pipeline. —EDF worked with the Izaak Walton League and Audubon Society in a suit that forced federal consideration of a total ban on use of the pesticide DDT.

—The National Wildlife Federation joined with the Sierra Club in a suit that forced the Atomic Energy Commission to restudy the environmental impact of an atomic plant at Calvert Cliffs, Md., and all its pending power plant authorizations.

National organizations often work with local environment groups, partly for their knowledge of local projects and partly for legal reasons, to make sure that parties directly affected join in the suit.

Thus the Calvert Cliffs Coordinating Committee was instrumental in the atomic plant case, and the Florida Defenders of the Environment helped EDF win an injunction against completion of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal, a project since abandoned by President Nixon's order.

Still another common concern among environment groups is that industry might try to alienate labor and antipollution groups from the environmental movement through the threat of layoffs or plant closings because of antipollution costs.

At the instigation of Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., 16 major environment labor and an-tipovety organizations have begun forging a coalition to combat any such move.

Whatever its achievements, its shortcomings, or its future, the rise of environmental legal action has, at least, shattered the "butterfly-chasing" image of conservationists.

Innovations Aid in Transition From Prison

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Midwestern prison officials are expanding new programs to hasten inmates' transition back to the community and there is general agreement the innovations are producing results.

An Associated Press survey of programs designed to smoothe the road back to society in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa and Nebraska revealed growing enthusiasm on the part of penal officials and inmates.

All five states have either introduced or are experimenting with work-release programs, under which inmates near discharge are permitted to learn and work outside the walls.

Educational opportunities are being expanded in all five states, along with other types of rehabilitative programs.

Oklahoma is attempting to transfer some 300 to 400 low-risk inmates from the maximum security institutions at McAlester and Granite to a former state mental hospital near Oklahoma City.

Virtually all the states surveyed reported efforts were made to keep first-offenders separated from habitual criminals.

Nebraska tries to keep all of its low-risk and first offense inmates in the men's reformatory, a few miles from the main prison at Lincoln.

Iowa's inmate population has dropped from about 2,500 eight years ago to just under 1,300. Authorities give much of the credit to rehabilitation programs, which start with a 30-day orientation period when a prisoner arrives and include community involvement through work-release centers.

Kansas is experimenting with a home visitation program that has stirred controversy. Well-behaved inmates can be allowed to go home three times a year for up to 10 days at a time.

Prison officials have permitted home visits by some inmates with up to five years left to serve. Some legislators say this wasn't their intent in passing the bill a year ago.

There have been indications the legislature convening in January might attempt to limit the program to prisoners nearing paroles.

Robert N. Woodson, state penal director, contends the program should be used to help inmates maintain relationships with family and home, not merely to re-establish family ties after years behind bars.

In Kansas and Iowa, the last day of a prisoner's term won't necessarily be his last day in prison. Some are returning as quasi-correctional workers or counselors to aid inmates nearing release.

But the work-release program is the big thing in three states, and two others, Oklahoma and Missouri, hope to get their programs rolling soon.

An inmate of Nebraska Penitentiary at Lincoln had warm praise for that state's work release program.

"I can't see anything but good in the program and it's going to get better," he said. Another declared, "It's wonderful. It can help a lot of people and the boys really like it."

The program was authorized by the 1967 legislature and in its first 3½ years, 164 inmates participated, earning about $160,000 in salary.

The Nebraska program permits participants to live in outside residences established by the state.

Some 23 inmates are participating at Lincoln and eight take part out of another work release center in Omaha.

Jobs inmates have learned include sales, electronics, welding, factory production, printing, tire repair, carpet laying, auto repair and painting.

Nebraska inmates who work at regular prison jobs are paid from 35 cents to $1.00 per day.

A review of 3½ years showed that of the $160,000 earned by convicts at outside jobs, $1,600 was paid the state in income taxes, $7,700 was paid in social security and about $15,800 in federal income taxes.

Inmates paid back to the state $48,480 for transportation and subsistence of $3.50 daily, sent $21,300 home to dependents and accumulated savings of about $51,700.

Kansas hopes to have 15 to 20 inmates in its work release program by the first of the year. Basically, the Kansas program is available only to those prisoners with top-notch records. They work outside the walls during the day and return to prison at night and on weekends.

In another Kansas incentive program, prisoners can accumulate "good time" to be deducted from their sentences at the rate of three days per each month of "good time" built up, which exceeds the usual time-off for good behavior concept.

The Kansas Board of Probation and Parole recently increased from 40 per cent to 65 per cent the number of inmates at each of the state's institutions who can participate.

Iowa prisoners work from male work-release centers at Des Moines, Waterloo and Iowa City. The Des Moines center provides also for female work release participants.

"We're trying to use community involvement wherever possible," says Nolan Ellandson, state director of adult corrections.

The Iowa Legislature first approved a work release program in 1967 and in its first year, 52 inmates participated. The program has expanded rapidly since then, with 570 inmates taking part in the 12 months ended June 30.

"We have a long way to go," Ellandson says, "but our philosophy remains to get people back into the community on probation and parole as quickly as possible."

Oklahoma's work release program appears to be a partial success. Originally there were to be two work release centers for participants nearing the end of their term.

Opposition from Tulsa lawmakers and homeowners killed the Tulsa program before it got started.

The Oklahoma City center, however, is functioning. Inmates work by day and return to the state facility each night. But only the most low-risk inmates are permitted to take part and then only when within three months of release.

A bill setting up a work release program will be introduced in the Missouri Legislature next month. Although Missouri permits inmates to attend classes outside the walls, actual on-the-job training is confined to prison industries.

All of Missouri's correctional institutions have vocational programs within the grounds. At the main prison at Jefferson City and at the reformatory at Moberly, such training includes computer programming, construction, automotive repair, furniture making the repair, food service skills and, at the main prison, dental laboratory work. The main prison also provides training in slaughtering and meat cutting.

All five states are pushing educational programs.

Missouri inmates can get full academic training through the high school level and some college courses also are available at the University of Missouri's Rolla campus.

Eleven inmates of the Algoa, Mo., intermediate reformatory travel to Linn, Mo., daily to attend vocational college. The women's prison at Tipton, Mo., offers courses in office work, cosmetology, sewing and food service.

All of Kansas' correctional institutions offer a wide range of vocational and educational training programs, focusing on those jobs where workers are needed, such as auto mechanics.

Kansas also has gone into federally funded Manpower Development Training programs, set up at the state prison at Lansing and the reformatory at Hutchinson.

In addition, a few private firms have initiated training at the Kansas Prison. A computer programming course at Lansing by the Radio Corporation of America has been described as a huge success. Philco-Ford offers an auto repair course there.

Other programs are aimed at rehabilitation from the moment

a man arrives to begin his term.

Iowa has a 30-day orientation program during which an inmate is systematically introduced to prison life. At the end of the period, he meets with prison staff and they jointly devise a program for him to follow during confinement.

Ellandson said the program covers the academic, vocational and counseling fields. Progress reports are compiled annually on the progress of each inmate toward the goals of his program.

Ellandson said the Iowa Parole Board relies heavily on these reports in determining whether an inmate is ready for release.

In Kansas, a new inmate is placed in a receiving unit where a classification officer talks with him and learns his background. This officer then becomes the prisoner's counselor and the inmate is placed in a section of prison according to his classification.

Miller Addresses Optimists

Sedalia Police Chief William Miller was the featured speaker at the Tuesday meeting of the Noon Optimist Club held at Bothwell Hotel.

In explaining the work of local police, Miller said it was important for people to know the difference between what the law seems to be and what it actually is. He said that it was important for persons making complaints to get the total facts instead of information not connected to the incident in question.

Miller added that police personnel cannot let prejudice enter into their duties as effective law enforcement officials. Conversely, he indicated that the general public should not harbor a basic prejudice against policemen doing their duty.

To explain some of the modern problems facing police across the nation, a film entitled "Take Another Look" was presented. The film covered areas of police investigations where people might have a tendency to prejudice what a policeman was doing.

The purpose of Miller's appearance at the meeting was to promote better understanding between the community and the police department.

Results of the club's Christmas tree sale this year were given by Pat Patton.

A guest introduced at the meeting was Darrell D. VanBaale, president of the Sunrise Optimist Club. Noon Optimist president Kenny Schilb presented a $10 gift to Mrs. Elizabeth Beck for her help in arranging luncheons each Tuesday.

Printed velvets, geometrics on suede, indoor-outdoor chaises, a ceramic wall, and chairs that fold, stack and hang are among the winning product designs in the first annual awards program of the Resources Council, an association of interior furnishings manufacturers servicing all segments of the industry.

A desk and matching credenza of white plastic accented with rosewood takes shape from a continuous ribbon of the white material.

A ceramic mural wall provides a wide variety of non-repeat mural treatments with three related forms that are said to be available at the cost of standard surfing materials. Two modules are in the 9 inch by 18 inch size and a third is 18 inches by 18 inches.

Handsome printed velvets combine beautiful colors in random designs that change dimensions, shapes, stripes in relation to the boldness of the colors.

A handsome vari-colored area rug is an example of the custom look that has been brought into the market because of a standard process that can create high tufting and subtle color variations at low cost.

One indoor-outdoor piece really updates the old-fashioned hammock. The modern chaise, a one-piece tubular chrome-finished steel frame with a foam sling, has been designed also to foil the elements.

DEAR POLLY — My little boy never liked orange juice or any fruit. So he will get his Vitamin C. I freeze orange juice on ice cream sticks to make frozen suckers and he not only gets his vitamins but feels he is having a special treat. — KATHY

DEAR POLLY — When I opened a checking account at the bank they gave me a plastic check book cover that folds over flat and has two pockets about six inches long. Later I was offered a new one and chose a different color but saved the old one to use as a holder for carrying coupons that I use at the store as well as stamps I receive there. The pockets are a good size for this and the different color distinguishes it from my check book. — MRS. J. E. L.

til light and fluffy. Stir in almond extract.

With a spoon, gradually beat in confectioners' sugar; mixture will become liquid at first, then thicken. Continue beating until mixture is thick enough to hold its shape. Mix in coconut.

Drop by heaping teaspoonfuls onto wax paper to harden. Makes 1 1/4 pounds or about 38 pieces.

NOTE: If confectioners' sugar is from a fresh unopened box, there's no need to sift in making this recipe. If you use opened boxes of the sugar, sift and measure 4 1/2 cups.

pare Mashed Potato Kisses mixture substituting 1/4 cup cocoa for 1/4 cup of the confectioners' sugar. 1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts for the coconut and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla for the almond extract.

MAPLE PECAN DROPS — Prepare Mashed Potato Coconut Kisses mixture substituting 1 cup chopped pecans for the coconut and 1/2 teaspoon maple flavor for the almond extract.

Vietnamese Girl Joins Air Force

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Just a year ago, a petite young lady from Saigon was sighting down an M16 rifle as she trained in the South Vietnamese Air Force. Today she has her sights set on a nursing career.

"When I went to training camp, everyone asked me why I joined the Air Force. I was so young to join the Air Force," Nguyen Thi Thanh Binh said with a shy smile.

"I told them, 'Because I would like to be a nurse,'" Miss Binh was only 19 when she entered the Air Force.

Now a warrant officer at the age of 20, she is enrolled in a four-year nursing program at Incarnate Word College under the sponsorship of the U.S. Air Force.

She and four other Vietnamese women arrived here in August, joining 12 others who began the program a year ago.

When she receives her degree, she will return to her homeland as a nurse in the South Vietnamese Air Force. After military service, she hopes to work in a civilian hospital.

Why did she choose a nursing career?

"I think being a nurse is suitable to my characteristics, my manner, because I like to take care of others."

She paused. "And I think a nurse would be a very good housewife."

Like thousands of other college freshmen, Miss Binh confessed she's homesick. She said it will be at least two years, perhaps longer, before she can return home for a visit.

Luckily, she has a Vietnamese roommate and has managed to meet some of the South Vietnamese students at the English language school here at Lackland Air Force Base.

She's run into a few problems, like mastering U.S. currency.

But one of the most perplexing problems is finding Vietnamese food. She and the other girls have had to settle for a nearby Chinese restaurant.

Miss Binh, who learned English in high school and speaks it quite well, says English still is her hardest subject here—even more difficult than her chemistry and biology courses.

She found Americans friendly. "I think they are happy a lot," she said. "It's strange to me—the atmosphere in the classes is different. More relaxed."

Miss Binh was born in North Vietnam but her family migrated to the south in 1954.

How has the war affected her family?

"I don't know what my parents think about the war. I myself hate war," Miss Binh said.

She added: "Because my name — Thanh Binh — means peace."

Embroidered Loungewear

Quilting and embroidery turn simply pretty robes into smashing ones. At left, Odetta Barsa translates this year's popular daytime coat, the princess, into a luxuriously long robe. It is boldly embroidered, begins slim with long narrow sleeves and a soft bow, then flares. In the center Bill Tice creates a wine velvet hostess gown for Royal Robes. Inspired by 19th century dress, the design is long with puffed sleeves, a high collar and white floral embroidery. At right, Odetta Barsa shows off a robe. It's a shocking pink embroidered peignior, and has a gathered look. The sleeves are puffed and there is a full bow at the neck. Underneath the coat, a sheer nightgown has rippled embroidery at the bodice. (AP)

Let's Not Revive The Bounty System

Some pressures appear to be building to reinstate the coyote bounty system, dropped last summer. The County Court should stand by its earlier decision and not give in.

The judges made the right move in August to discontinue paying the bounties. Their judgment was based on solid grounds: the bounties are expensive, of dubious value and invite abuse.

Nothing has changed to alter this picture. The state has not made matching bounty payments to counties since the middle of 1969, and, apparently being convinced that the bounty system is outmoded and wasteful, may never resume them.

This budgetary fact, along with the growing conviction that the bounties are an anachronism, has led many counties to drop them altogether. Until the practice was suspended here last summer, Pettis was one of the few counties in this part of the state still paying bounties. Needless to say, this invited abuse by unscrupulous coyote hunters from the surrounding area.

A lot of mythology still clings to the bounty system. The fact that the term "wolf bounty" is still used, when in truth only coyotes are found in Pettis County, is indicative of this.

Although the coyote enjoys the reputation of being a fierce predator, extensive scientific analysis of 770 coyote carcasses, undertaken by the Missouri Department of Conservation, showed that the great bulk of a coyote's diet comes from wild animals. Only a small part of it constitutes a financial loss to man.

We suspect that a lot of the pressures being applied to the County Court are coming from hunters who kill coyotes for pay and for sport. There is no reason the taxpayers should underwrite them.

Merry-Go-Round

Israel Now Invaded By 'Kosher Nostra'

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Zionists and refugees aren't the only Jews who look upon Israel as the promised land. A disturbing number of Jewish racketeers have also sought sanctuary in Israel.

Within the underworld, these criminal operators are known as the "Kosher Nostra." But their activities in narcotics, gambling, shy-locking and prostitution are anything but kosher.

The Israeli government has been quietly investigating their dark pasts. Most notorious of the lot is Meyer Lansky, the Mafia's "banker." But a host of lesser crime figures have also found asylum in Israel or are reportedly planning to shift their operations there. These include:

-- Harry Stromberg, alias Nig Rosen, a onetime Philadelphia mobster identified in Senate hearings as "one of the biggest dope peddlers in the country";

-- Joe "Doc" Stacher, an underworld habitue, who was allowed to immigrate to Israel after his conviction on income tax charges;

-- Morris Schmertzler, alias Max Courtney, a former big-time gambler;

-- Gamblers Al Mones, Hyman "Hymie" Segal and Frank Ritter, alias Red Reed;

-- Claude Lipsky, a French Jew wanted in France in connection with a real estate scandal.

Down through the centuries, following the destruction of the Jewish state in 70 A.D., the Jews scattered from Kai-feng to Kalamazoo. But always in their hearts remained a yearning for their Holy Places.

When the new Jewish state was proclaimed in 1948, therefore, its doors were thrown open to all returning Jews, and their right to remain was sanctified by the famous Law of Return.

Now the noble law, intended to guarantee a place for any homeless Jew, is being used by racketeers to create a criminal sanctuary.

Some Israeli authorities hold the Law of Return as sacred and are determined to preserve it no matter who may abuse it. But other officials, particularly in the Interior Ministry, want to block the influx of hoodlums.

Still other elements in Israel are willing to condone the criminal migration, because of the huge capital the hoods bring into the country.

This underworld boodle—much of it raised from nefarious enterprises in the U.S.—is "laundered" before it arrives in Israel. This is accomplished simply by funneling it through Swiss banks.

My associate, Les Whitten, has spent three weeks tracing ill-gotten U.S. dollars from Swiss to Israeli banks. He has spoken to top bankers in the U.S. and Switzerland.

We have also learned that the Justice Department is investigating how certain Swiss banks transfer underworld funds to Israel. We have obtained the names of four banks in Geneva and Zurich, with excellent worldwide reputations, which allegedly have served as conduits for underworld cash. But after talking to bank officers, we have decided there is not yet enough proof to justify naming them.

Meanwhile, the emotional battle over the Law of Return is agonizing Jews not only in Israel but in America. One, who has worked selflessly for the Jewish state since its inception, summed it up:

"Israel must decide whether it will be true to the principles of its founding fathers, who decreed that every Jew should have a homeland, or whether it should protect itself against criminal elements."

Background Briefings—Controversy is again raging over the government practice of putting out news in "background" briefings, where officials tell the press whatever they want without being quoted by name. With exquisite timing, the Interior Department has just decided to inaugurate a series of such "backgrounders." Hollis Dole, assistant secretary for mineral resources, will conduct the first one on January 19.

Such publicity antics should come as no surprise, because Interior is now being packaged and sold like soap flakes. The publicity staff, pretentiously called the "Office of Communications," has been doubled. Special assistants for magazine and television publicity have been hired. The only trouble is they don't know what to do, so they end up sending memos to other Interior officials suggesting what magazine articles to read and what TV programs to watch.

Political Game — Rep. William Anderson, the soft-spoken Tennessee Democrat who angered the Nixon administration by discovering the Tiger Cages in Vietnam, has been officially pronounced a presidential candidate by the manufacturer of a new political game. The game, "The Next President," lists Anderson, however, as a Republican. Wrote Anderson, in a letter to the manufacturer: "On your profile chart you listed me as a Republican. Not only this but right next to Spiro Agnew! The results could be calamitous. My staff has grown mutinous, they threaten to resign."

Sweet Smell—The latest perfume to catch on with the worldly women of Washington is a French scent that won't be sold in this country until 1973. It's called "Liz" and sells for $15 for half an ounce. Costly or not, Pat Nixon, her daughter Tricia, and Muriel Humphrey all have some. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is reported to have bought 50 dollars of the stuff, presumably for Christmas gifts.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The first school of journalism in the United States was founded at the University of Missouri at Columbia, Mo., by Walter Williams in 1908. The World Almanac recalls. Enrollment for the first school year was 97 students—84 men and 13 women—and the first degree was granted in 1909 to Charles Arnold.

Why Fret Over the Dollar?

By CARLTON SMITH
NEA Financial Writer

"I have brought my intellect fiercely to bear on all the news stories and editorials about the devaluation of the dollar," Snively told the Financial Wizard. "And I am frankly floundering. I don't know whether it's something I should be worried about or not. That worries me."

Smith said the Wizard, "you are worried because you don't know whether or not you should be worried. This is a condition of life in our society, and merely demonstrates that you are normal. Therefore, you have nothing to worry about. On the other hand, if you weren't worried about something you would not be normal, and that would be cause for worry. Now, about the dollar."

"My dollars more precisely," said Snively. "Should I clean out my savings account and buy gold-mine stocks? Diamonds? French impressionist paintings? Or should I—"

"One moment," said the Wizard. "It is the word 'devaluation' that bothers you. Let us test your reaction to this." He drew a large dollar sign on a sheet of paper and held it up. "Do you feel worried about what you see on the paper?"

Snively pondered a moment. "No."

"Quite normal," said the Wizard. "Because that was not a dollar you were looking at, but a dollar sign. A symbol. Not the thing itself. Agreed?"

Snively nodded.

"Very well. Now, the devaluation that you are worried about — or rather, uncertain whether you should worry about — is also only symbolical. The dollar was in fact devalued last August. Certain high-ranking officials denied, at the time, that devaluation had occurred, and this has created a certain amount of confusion.

"It is rather as if Uncle Harry had expired some time ago, and you buried him, but the doctor said that, although Uncle Harry should indeed be removed to the cemetery, he wasn't really dead. Now, four months later, he tells you that Uncle Harry is breathing his last and you should start making plans for the funeral."

"You're suggesting the dollar is dead?" Snively asked in alarm.

"This depends on which dollar we are talking about," said the Wizard. "There was formerly a dollar which foreign debtors could hope to have redeemed by the United States for 1-35th of an ounce of gold. That dollar has been dead since last August, when Washington announced that gold parity had suddenly departed, some time during the night, without leaving a forwarding address.

"The dollar your wife exchanges at the grocery for potatoes or whatever — and the dollar you have in your savings account — is alive and more or less well. It is still worth, and will continue to be worth, whatever a dollar is worth in the American economy.

"As for our late friend, the gold-at-$35-ounce dollar, who has been dead for some while, it is high time the poor fellow was buried. This dollar has been floating around in the limbo of international monetary waters, where it has been devalued some 8½ per cent through natural attrition.

"Now Washington has agreed to a formal devaluation, or funeral. The appropriate sentiment should not be pain or grief, but simple relief that we can at last erect a headstone reading, 'Here lies the 91-cent dollar' — or whatever the figure turns out to be."

Snively grasped the Wizard's hand and shook it warmly. "Really appreciate this," he said. "Not a bit worried now."

"Abnormal fellow," the Wizard muttered as he departed. "Oh well — wait till he reads tomorrow's paper."

Southeast Asia Is Seeking Neutrality

WASHINGTON — Too often we Americans are impressed by events of violence, or dramatic surprises, in making foreign policy judgments. This penchant for swaying with the headlines causes us to often overlook quiet developments of great significance.

Rowan Southeast Asia that have produced "the Kuala Lumpur declaration."

There can be no doubt that the administration's petulant policy in the India-Pakistan confrontation was a case of childish bungling which handed the Soviet Union one of its major diplomatic triumphs of the last quarter-century. It has been characterized accurately as the biggest foreign policy blunder of a Nixon administration that has made far fewer mistakes in the foreign field than most anyone expected three years ago.

But the main story of declining U.S. prestige was not in those gory headlines coming out of East Bengal, but in the almost prayerful declarations of the countries of Southeast Asia meeting quietly in the capital of Malaysia.

Why was it such a silly, empty affront for the U.S. to have the aircraft carrier Enterprise steam into the Bay of Bengal as though it was a warning to India of U.S. military intervention? Because even our staunchest, most hawkish allies in that part of the world have concluded that reliance on U.S. military intervention is foolhardy.

With the agonies of war in Indochina still gripping the U.S., no one believed that she was about to become militarily involved in the Indo-Pakistani subcontinent.

It is this realization of U.S. impotence — at least impotence of spirit — that caused Foreign Ministers Adam Malik of Indonesia, Carlos Romulo of the Philippines, S. Rajaratnam of Singapore, special envoy and former Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand and Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak of Malaysia to meet in Kuala Lumpur and issue a declaration of neutrality which would have been unthinkable even five years ago.

These five countries, with about 200 million combined population, declared their determination to make Southeast Asia "a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality, free from any form or manner of interference by outside powers."

They fell short of an outright declaration, but their joint communique also made it clear that they wish to make Southeast Asia "a nuclear-free zone."

This has the most serious implications for any future U.S. military role in Southeast Asia.

The U.S. air war against North Vietnam has been waged largely from bases in Thailand where, significantly, the government is still fighting an internal struggle against Communist-inspired guerrillas.

The huge B-52s that have dropped tons of bombs on Indochina have flown out of U.S. bases in the Philippines, once regarded merely as a U.S. puppet.

Malaysia was once a vocally hawkish encourager of U.S. military intervention in Indochina, and her troops are still killing local Chinese insurgents who get instructions by radio from the China mainland.

Indonesia has been sharply pro-Western since a pro-Peking coup was foiled, Sukarno was ousted as president and tens of thousands of Communists were purged.

With no bases in the Philippines or Thailand, no place to put nuclear weapons there, and with Indonesia, Malaysia and Singapore following policies of strict neutrality, the influence of U.S. military might in Southeast Asia would drop drastically.

A grave question for these small countries, however, is whether Communist China and the Soviet Union will respect their declaration of neutrality. The two Communist giants might consider it worth the pretense just to encourage the Asians to force out the U.S. bases.

Asian leaders are aware of the dangerous import of the step they have taken. Razak told the foreign ministers that a "long and difficult road is ahead of us ... any mistake entails grave risks."

That these countries would take such risks is a telling commentary on their new view of Uncle Sam. The reams of publicity likely to come from Mr. Nixon's China visit will not change that reality one whit.

Today's hand appeared in our column back in July. South had looked at dummy and commented, "We haven't bid enough." Then he proceeded to win the trump lead and play the ace and king of hearts. West ruffed and led a second trump, whereupon Garrulous Gene proceeded to go down one at his slam contract. Numerous readers pointed out the contract could be made. East must discard on that second trump and can't afford to throw a heart or club. He must throw a diamond. Now South plays ace of diamonds; ruffs a low heart and leads dummy's last diamond. If East throws a club South can set up dummy's last club; if he throws a heart, South can set up his last heart. This play is known as a trump squeeze. Gene did not find it at the table and we did not study the hand enough to notice it. We also failed to note that South could make a grand slam by means of dummy reversal. He leads a diamond to the ace at trick two. Ruffs a diamond in his hand; leads a club to the ace; ruffs dummy's last diamond; leads a club to the king; ruffs a club and leads his last trump to dummy.

Dummy is left with two trumps, a club and the ace-three of hearts. Those two trumps are played and South discards down to the king and two hearts. East is hopelessly squeezed. He can't throw his last club and since he also can't unguard the hearts he has to watch South make all the tricks.

Our thanks to the many readers who sent us comments on this most interesting hand.
